PREFACE.

THE compiler of the Brown, and the Nathaniel Babcock and Main Genealogies, by request was persuaded to do some supplementary work, and this is the apology for sending out to the public my third Genealogy. I have in the last half of this book compiled the records of Charles Browne, whose name first appeared in Rowley, Mass., at the time of his marriage, in 1647. At the instance of Alexander T. Brown, of Syracuse, N. Y., who said that his great-grandmother on the other side was a Brown, and when an opportunity afforded he would like to have me look up her records, I, after long and diligent search, found that her progenitor was Charles Browne. Hence many of the numerous descendants follow, in the second part of this volume.

From my past experience, I do not anticipate the sale of the third Genealogy will compensate for all the outlay of time, labor, and money spent in its production; but the satisfaction derived in doing the work is a partial compensation, and that the book will commend itself to posterity and prove useful when all who are now living have passed away is the author's firm belief. It is difficult for the compiler to enumerate the obstacles he has had to encounter in getting the annals of the Browns into their present shape, and he must crave the indulgence of his readers for errors and omissions, chargeable in part to imperfect reports received.

At the same time, it should be stated, there are those who have taken hearty interest and worked right royally to have their families placed with proper fulness and accuracy in this volume. Many of them are persons who have come into the family by marriage, and by their faithful, painstaking endeavors have proved their appreciation of the name and their desire to perpetuate its history. In pursuit of the required information for my work in this volume, I have sent out hundreds of circulars and letters, and have received several hundred in reply. Many cities, towns, records, and burying-grounds have been visited and consulted; old Bibles containing family records sought out, and their treasures of genealogy rescued from oblivion; the memories of aged people have been brought into requisition, and valuable information, which but for this effort would have perished with the lives of those from whom it was obtained, has been put upon the printed page to be handed down to posterity. It has been passing strange that many aged people have thought that the knowledge they had of their ancestry was all-sufficient, forgetting that unless it was transcribed to the printed page it would sink into oblivion. "Wouldst thou trust thy name to dumb forgetfulness, or to the decaying graveyard stone? Nay, rather place it on the pages of history, in the printed book."

Nearly all the Browns have moved in the middle walks of life — not so elevated as to be dazed by splendor, or so poor as to suffer want. Very many, it will be seen, have been Christian ministers, and a very large proportion connected with churches as members or church officers.

The writer sends out this volume to the public as it is, hoping those who have the curiosity to examine its pages will do so in a spirit of candor, and with an appreciative sense of the impossibility of putting in a form entirely correct records which run back for a period of two hundred and fifty years and more. Effort has been made to give all families an opportunity to be heard from and represented. Some few are not interested; while, on the other hand, others are glad such a work is being compiled, and have cheerfully sent records, written letters to others, and helped to make the work of use to as many of the kin as possible. The list is too long to mention by name all whose kindness and expressed good wishes the author deeply appreciates and will ever hold in precious and tender remembrance. Most hearty thanks are now tendered to my friends and kindred whose words of encouragement from time to time have placed me under obligations to them. After fourteen years of continuous genealogical work I lay down my pen, hoping some future historian will continue this work. The free use of my genealogies to any such is freely granted.

EXPLANATIONS.

After the name of a parent will follow their original number in parentheses; by turning back, his or her number will be found with the parents.

Children that have numbers in parentheses at the end of the line will be found with corresponding numbers carried forward with their families, thus:

607. Mary Ann Brown, b. Aug. 28, 1863 (617-627).

Mary Ann Brown (607), b., Stonington, Ill., Aug. 28, 1863; m., Stonington, Mar. 21, 1883, James Riley Anderson.

Children: Eleven.

617. Ralph Brown Anderson, b., etc.

After the name of a parent the head of a family, often, will follow in brackets the name of the ancestors in genealogical order.

The name of the first child of a family of children is given in full, but the family name of all the others is omitted.

Let us gather up the traditions that still exist; let us show the world that, if we are not called to follow the example of our fathers, we are not at least insensible to the worth of their characters; not indifferent to the sacrifices and trials by which they purchased our prosperity.

—EDWARD EVERETT.

INTRODUCTION.

It is with a pleasant feeling of accomplishment that I write this introduction to my third volume of genealogical work. It is justified by the success with which my previous genealogies have been received. I have been favored with that leisure which has blessed the decline of my life in writing Family History, which connects family with family, from the least to the greatest, as if the hand of direction was again upon the curtain to give old scenes new lights.

The first section contains records of Nicholas Browne and his son Thomas, who settled in Lynn, Mass., in 1630. I take as the basis of this genealogy, as in my Brown Book, the three sons of Thomas Brown and Mary Newhall; viz., Thomas, John, and Eleazer Brown, who came to Stonington, Conn., about 1680, taking fifty-three numbers in regular order as given in my first volume. A large number of new families have been found and connected to the parent tree, giving impetus to this second effort by the urgent request of many relatives.

The second section takes up Charles Browne and his descendants, who settled in Rowley, Mass., in 1647, and who doubtless came with the early pioneers from 1630 to 1635. In this second section I am indebted to the Spicer Genealogy for the origin of this family, and to Miss Ellen L. Brown, of Greenfield, Mass., who has labored untiringly to bring forth her ancestry; otherwise many of these now a long time passed on would have been unhonored and unsung.

One of the most useful faculties of the mind is memory; and history enables us to treasure up the memories of those who have lived before us. What a painful want should we suffer were the history of our fathers a blank, and we could know no more of them than of the aborigines! Our existence might indeed be regarded as incomplete if we could not command the record of past time, as well as enjoy the present, and hope for the happiness of the future. When you see the names of your ancestors on the printed page it is hoped you will be aroused to know more of them.

In the gathering of material here sheathed and bound there has been much brought out from the by-ways of life unknown to many members of these families, and thought worth while to give publication. My effort has been throughout this research to bind the branches to the parent tree, and where a family appeared that could not be so connected it was rejected. The work is not complete, and it could be continued through a long lifetime and then be incomplete; but I pass it on to succeeding generations. There were many Browns among the earlier generations of whom nothing more will be known, save name and birth at a certain date. This volume is intended to form a connected whole with the volume published in 1907.

I cannot let this opportunity pass without expressing my sincere obligations to all those who have in any way contributed information which has aided me again to bring a new edition of my work before the public. Yet there are hundreds that have wrought royally that I cannot mention. First, this publication was made possible by the generous assistance of Alexander T. Brown, of Syracuse, N. Y., and Dr. Charles W. Brown, Washington, D. C., who sent me the data of his great-grandfather, Thomas Brown (47), of eight hundred names. Abel Prentice Brown, of Amherst, Mass., sent me the connecting link to Samuel Brown (52) in the same family. There are scores that have given their assistance to make this compilation a success, many of whom will find credit under their name and record.

Having a natural love for this work to commemorate the acts and deeds of the fathers and mothers long passed away, this supplementary work is compiled as a monument to their memory. "Truth is of far greater importance to life than art can ever be."

A genealogist can never be successful "who be afearred of hard work"—"neither should he have a lying tongue or a bad memory."

Covet nothing that is your neighbor's except his kindness of heart and gentleness of manners.—HENRY VAN DYKE.

NOTE.—The compiler spent much valuable time in research to establish whether Nicholas Browne was the father of Thomas Browne, of Lynn. He found much about Nicholas Browne, and had written it out in full, only finally to come to the conclusion that he was not the father of Thomas. Other historians of recent date are of the same opinion; although I had so stated in my first volume, which I here positively contradict.

At a good deal of trouble and expense I got a copy of the will of Nicholas Browne (which is kept in East Cambridge, Mass.) to publish here, and found that Thomas Browne was not mentioned, while his children by his wife Elizabeth were all particularly mentioned. Thomas is not referred to in any probate of Nicholas; nor can I as yet get any note referring to any gift from Nicholas of rights in Lynn.

Mary, the wife of Thomas Browne in 1701 [record vol. IV, p. 93], was alive, in Stonington, when she, with her son Thomas, Jr. (2), sold rights to his brother Daniel.

Thomas was of the right age to be a son of Nicholas, but the proof is lacking that he had any link to Thomas Browne referred to as dish-turner and constable of Lynn.

THE BROWN GENEALOGY.

Thomas Browne, b. about 1628; m. Mary Newhall, b. June, 1637; dau. of Thomas Newhall, of Lynn. He continued in Lynn, which was one of the earliest towns planted in Massachusetts. Plymouth was planted in 1620. The settlement of Lynn was begun in 1629; it then had five families, and by them in this wilderness the soil was first stirred by the white man; there, surrounded by Indians, they laid the foundation of the town. These settlers are supposed to have come from Salem, and their number was greatly augmented in 1630, at the time of the arrival of Winthrop and his company. The great body of fifty persons, with their families, who came to Lynn this year settled in all parts of the town, selecting the most eligible portions, and each occupying from ten to two hundred acres; some occupied more. They were principally farmers and possessed a large stock of horned cattle, sheep, and goats. For several years, before the land was divided and the fields fenced, the cattle were fed in one drove, and guarded by a man who, from his employment, was called a hayward. The sheep, goats, and swine were kept on Nahant, where they were tended by a shepherd. A fence of rails, put near together, was made across the beach near Nahant, to keep out the wolves, as those animals do not climb. When the people were building this fence Captain Turner said, "Let us make haste, lest the country should take it from us." [Deposition in Salem Court Records, April 22, 1657.]

The people of Lynn, for some years, appear to have lived in the most perfect democracy. They had town meetings every three months, for the regulation of their public affairs. Later on, by Eaton, is found this record: "Nicholas Browne, Edward Taylor and others were fined 6d. each for being late at town meeting." They cut their wood in common, and drew lots for the grass in the meadows and marshes. There are hundreds of acres of marshlands, and these proved very serviceable to the farmers, by furnishing them with sustenance for their cattle, which was probably the reason why there were more farmers in Lynn than in any other of the early settlements. Mr. Johnson says, "The chiefest corn they planted, before they had plows, was Indian grain,— and let no man make a jest at Pumkins, for with this food the Lord was pleased to feed his people to their good content, till Corne and Cattell were increased."

Their corn at the first was pounded, after the manner of the Indians, with a pestle of wood or stone, in a mortar made either of wood or stone, or a log hollowed out at one end. They raised a considerable quantity of flax.

Their first houses were rude structures, covered with thatch. A common form of the early cottages was eighteen feet square, with seven-foot posts, and the roof steep enough to form a sleeping-chamber. The better houses were built with two stories in front, sloping down to one in the rear. The frames were of heavy oak timber, showing the posts and beams inside. Burnt clam shells were used for lime, and the walls were white-washed. The fireplaces were made of rough stones, and the chimneys of boards, plastered inside with clay. The fireplaces were large enough to admit a four-foot log, and the children might sit in the corners and look up at the stars. On whichever side of the road the houses were placed, they uniformly faced the south, that the sun at noon might "shine square." Thus each house formed a domestic sun-dial, by which the good matron, in the absence of a clock, could tell in fair weather when to call her husband and sons from the field.—Lewis, "History of Lynn," pp. 69 and 70.

As before stated, Thomas Browne remained in Lynn, and married Mary Newhall.

The Newhall family was prominent among the early settlers of Lynn, and came with Winthrop and company in 1630.

Thomas Newhall, who came from England and landed at Salem with his brother Anthony, settled in Lynn soon after. Thomas was a farmer and owned all the lands on the eastern side of Federal Street, as far north as Marion. His house stood on the east side of the former street, south of where the brook crosses. In the division of lands in Lynn in 1630 he received thirty acres. His was one of the fifty families in Lynn in 1630, there being but five in 1629.

Thomas Newhall is known to have had the following children:

- I. Susannah Newhall, b. England, about 1624; m. Richard Haven and had twelve children. Several of his sons were among the first settlers in Framingham, Mass.

NOTE.—A great family gathering of the descendants of this Lynn settler was held in Framingham, a number of years since, at which some fifteen hundred were present. Many eminent persons appear in the family line.

- II. John Newhall, b. England; m. (1) Elizabeth Loughton; m. (2) Sarah Flanders.

- III. Thomas Newhall, b. about 1630. The most notable circumstance regarding this individual is that he was the first white child born in Lynn. He m., Dec. 29, 1652, at the age of twenty-two, Elizabeth Potter. There were ten children. Thomas Newhall d. Mar., 1687, his wife having d. a few weeks before. She was buried Feb. 22, 1687. For many years the Newhall family were very numerous in Lynn and elsewhere, and are even at the present time. Thomas Newhall, aged fifty-seven, the first white person born in Lynn, was buried in the old burying-ground, near the west end of Lynn Common, Apr. 1, 1687.
- IV. Mary Newhall, b. about 1637; m. Thomas Browne, b. about 1628. He d. Aug. 28, 1683. Her name first appears in records as wife of Thomas Browne in 1658. His widow, Mary, was appointed administratrix, Oct. 9, 1683, on the same day the non-cupative will of Thomas Browne was taken down [on file in the office of the Register of Probate in Salem]. He names his eldest son, Thomas, and his sons Joseph, John, Daniel, and Ebenezer, and dau. Mary, who m. Thomas Norwood.

In this connection is given the will of Thomas Newhall, Sr., who m. Mary ——. She d. Sept. 25, 1665. He lived until May 25, 1674.

THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT of Thomas Newhall, signed 1st April, 1668, was received in court 30<sup>d</sup>, 4<sup>m</sup>, 1674. Some of his bequests are as follows:

“I bequeath my twelve acres of salt marsh to my son Thomas Newhall and my son John Newhall, the six acres that my son Tho: shall have, is three acres in Runney Marsh nere the Iland, and the rest is a pcell lying in the Town marsh caled Gaines his neck and another pcell lying in the Towne marsh adjoining to my brother ffarington. [They seldom used the capital F, using instead two small f's.] And the six acres that my son John shall have lyeth in the last devission in Runney marsh but if my son John should have noe child before he dieth then the six Acres I give to my son John, to returne to my son Thomas and his heires forever but if my son John should have a child or children, then the said six acres to be at his owne dispose forever.

“I bequeath to my son Richard Hauen his children twenty pounds to be equally devided amongst them, namely betweene Joseph Hauen [spelled also Haven], Richard Hauen, Sarah Hauen, Nathaniel Hauen and Moses this not to be pd till they come to the age of twenty one yeares:

"I bequeath to my son Thomas Brownes his children twenty pounds, equally to be devided betwene them and the sixteene pounds which he hath already of mine in his hands is to be pt of his twenty pounds I give to his children.

"I bequeath to my two daughters, Suana Hauen and Mary Browne each of them a p<sup>r</sup> of sheets and each of them two pillow beers.

"Alsoe I constitut and make my lawfull and sole executor and to pform this my last will and testament, my son Thomas Newhall.

"I doe alsoe bequeath to my son Thomas Newhall his children thirty pounds, and this is my true will and testament I have sett to my hand this first of aprill, 1668:

But as the document was executed just before his death, it is reasonable to conclude that infirmity, rather than ignorance, was the occasion of his signing in that suspicious manner. A facsimile of his signature is preserved in the records of Lynn.

His estate appraized 25<sup>d</sup>, 4<sup>mo</sup>, '74, by Oliver Purchas and Robert Burges, and amounted to £173, 01s, 07½d.

" 'T is good sometimes to travel back
To days of 'auld lang syne;
Retrace the ancient fathers' track
Along the mossy line;
Visit the old ancestral homes,
Our parents' virtues learn,
And round their monumental stones
Let veneration burn;
Review the trials that they bore
In old, primeval years,
To gain this fair and goodly shore,
Mid toil and want and fears;
Observe their efforts here to raise
The standard of the Cross,
Where they might preach and pray and praise,
No prelates to oppress.
And how, in after-times, they grew
The tree of liberty,
And from its topmost branches threw
The flag of victory;
That same bright flag, whose starry fold
Their loyal sons admire,
And, spite of traitors, will uphold
With sword and blood and fire."

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

In this Genealogy, as in my former treatises, I have taken up the three sons of Thomas Brown, Sr., and Mary Newhall, his wife; viz., Thomas, Jr. (2), John (8), and Eleazer Brown (11), who came to Stonington, Conn., where they purchased large tracts of land and made themselves permanent homes, where they had large families. Most of this tract of land is within the limits of the present town of No. Stonington, bounded as follows: the western boundary was nearly all on Ossekonk Swamp; the northern boundary extended from the Ossekonk Brook on the west to Shunock River, and still east of said river, for Eleazer (11) built his house half a mile from the river, and this easterly part of their possessions is where is found the most productive land. Their northern boundary joined the lands of the late Stephen Avery and lands of the Main family, to lands of the Randall family; easterly on the Randall land to the Richardson's possessions; on the south by the Palmer family land and Miner territory; and on the west by the Wheeler family land up to the said Ossekonk Swamp. The Main family mentioned was Ezekiel Main, who came from Scituate, Mass., in 1669 and took up large tracts of land as described in my treatises in my Main Genealogy.

On the above tract of land described is one of the oldest burying-grounds in the town, on the south of the cedar swamp from which this burying-ground takes its name. Long before the Providence and New London turnpike was built a road passed by this ancient burying-place, but after the turnpike was constructed this road was discontinued, making it one of the most secluded places that can be found on the whole tract of land to bury the dead. No interments have been made here for many years. Here, without headstones, are interred many of the early settlers, and without doubt two of the pioneers,— Thomas (2) and John (8),— but no headstones mark their last resting-place. The first marked headstones were placed in these grounds one hundred and two years after the death of Thomas (2). They are placed at the Ichabod Brown family. At the grave of Roswell Brown, the great-grandfather of the compiler, are marble engraved stones; Thatcher, his brother, also has engraved stones. Jedediah Brown and his three wives have engraved stones; and this is all, among fifty or more graves. Thomas Brown (22), whose house and farm were only about a mile away, and his son Samuel, who owned the same house and lands of his father, doubtless are buried here. Abel Prentice Brown, of Amherst, Mass., now living, harks back to Samuel as his great-grandfather. The remains of many have been removed to Union Cemetery, and to Elm Grove Cemetery, Mystic, Conn.

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

THOMAS BROWN (2), son of Thomas Brown and Mary Newhall, of Lynn; b., Lynn, about Jan. 1, 1654; d., Stonington, Conn., Dec. 27, 1723; interred at the Cedar Swamp Burying-ground, and probably was among the first buried there. The grave is unmarked. He m., Feb. 8, 1677, Hannah Collins, of Lynn; dau. of John Collins, of Lynn. He built his house about forty rods west of what was afterwards known as the "Pond Place" house on the Anguilla Road, and about thirty rods west of this road. The cellar is filled six feet above the ground with stones, and down the hill is a fine living spring of water, making a natural place for a pioneer to build his house. His ten children without doubt were born here.

Children, b. Stonington:

17. Samuel Brown, b. Dec. 8, 1678.
18. Hannah, b. Dec. 5, 1680.
19. Mary, b. May 26, 1683; m. Thomas York. Their records are written in B. G. (pp. 166 to 201), where will be found complete records.
20. Jerusha, b. Dec. 25, 1688.
21. Sarah, b. July 11, 1689.
22. Thomas, b. Feb. 14, 1692; m. Deborah Holdredge (47-53).
23. Elizabeth, b. May 9, 1694; m. James Pendleton (69-74).
24. Daniel, b. Oct. 9, 1696; m. Mary Breed (54-61).
25. Priscilla, b. Jan. 30, 1699.
26. Humphrey, b. Sept. 16, 1701; m. Tabitha Holdredge (1252-1258).

JOHN BROWN (8), son of Thomas Brown and Mary Newhall his wife, b., Lynn, 1664; m., Stonington, Oct., 1692, Elizabeth Miner, b. Apr., 1674; dau. of Ephraim and Hannah (Avery) Miner, and granddau. of Lieut. Thomas and Grace (Palmer) Miner.

John Brown, who was a carpenter, built his house on the western portion of the lands purchased by the three Brown brothers. The well is still to be seen, about one hundred rods south of the George Wheeler farm, owned later by Charles L. Brown, now [1914] by George A. Pendleton, where the compiler of these records was b., Nov. 24, 1829.

Children, b. Stonington:

27. John Brown, b. July, 1693; d. Apr., 1694.
28. Jonathan, b. Mar. 15, 1695; m., Oct. 5, 1718, Hannah Richardson.

ELEAZER BROWN (11), son of Thomas Brown and Mary Newhall, of Lynn, Mass., b., Lynn, Aug. 5, 1670; d., Stonington, now No. Stonington, Nov. 30, 1734; m., Oct. 18, 1693, Ann Pendleton, b., Westerly, R. I., Nov. 12, 1677; d. aged sixty years; dau. of Capt. James and Hannah (Goodenow) Pendleton. His house stood in the eastern part of lands purchased by the Brown brothers, about twenty-five rods south of the Brown Cemetery, and north of the Miner Meeting-house. Headstones were erected to their graves by the late Daniel Brown. Probably these were the first interments in these grounds. He was a farmer and stock-raiser. [For his will, see Appendix.] — Pendleton Genealogy, by Everett H. Pendleton. We quote on p. 46.

Eleazer Brown and his wife made their home in Westerly, and later in Stonington, in the part of that township which was afterward set off to form No. Stonington. In the division of her father's property Ann received his house, as appears in the following agreement of the heirs:

The following Deed of Land, purchased by Thomas Browne, Jr. (2), joined his home land on the south. He may have deeded it to his son Thomas (22), as he deeded another tract of land, east, to his son Daniel (24), which was "witnessed and signed and sealed the twenty-fifth of January, One Thousand Seven Hundred twenty one-two, in ye Seventh year of his Majestie's Reign — George King of Great Britain." At any rate, on this newly acquired land Thomas Brown (22) built his house, and his successor was his son Samuel (52), and here were born his children. Samuel Brown in this connection follows, and he gives to his youngest son, Prentice Brown, by will, this same homestead. From Prentice this estate came to his adopted dau., who m. Cogswell T. Miner. This family was the last to hold possession of this farm in lineal descent. It is now [1914] owned by the heirs of the late Hermon C. Brown. The house itself, doubtless built by Thomas Brown (22), which has been the home for succeeding generations of those above mentioned, has passed out of existence.

Following is a deed of a tract of land from Samuel Allin to Thomas Browne, Jr. (2):

The above record is given to show the value of a grist-mill and the privileges thereof at the date here given. This mill and dam had passed out of existence in 1840, when a new mill and dam were built by Dudley Brown and sons. This last mill also passed out of existence many years ago.

Mary Brown (19), dau. of Thomas (2) and Hannah Collins, son of Thomas (1) and Mary Newhall; she was the third child that was born in Stonington, Conn., May 26, 1683, at the "Pond Place" before described, the early home of this family in primeval days, her father being the first to stir the soil in this then wilderness of Stonington, now No. Stonington, and awake the echoes with his axe in this primitive forest. This takes us back to the beginners of this oldest family of the Browns in Stonington. Mary Brown m., Stonington, Jan. 9, 1704, Thomas York, son of James York, Jr. Wheeler's "History of Stonington" says of the York family, p. 695:

"June 20, 1635, there embarked on board the good ship Philip, Richard Morgan, master, forty-two passengers, who were to be transported from England to Virginia, in America. They had been previously examined by the minister of Gravesend as to their conformity to the orders and discipline of the Church of England, and had taken the oath of allegiance.

"James York, Sr., was one of the passengers of the good ship Philip in 1635, rated therein at the age of 21 years, consequently he was born in the year 1614. It is not known at what place in Virginia Capt. Morgan landed his passengers, or whether he landed them in that colony at all. If they were landed there, our James York did not remain there long. He doubtless soon after his arrival in this country, came north, whether by land or water we do not know, but the first record we have of him is in Braintree, Mass.

"James York, Sr., came to Stonington, Conn., in the year 1660, when this town was under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, and called by the name of Southertown, and settled on grants of land which then included the present farm of Gideon P. Chesebrough, east of Anguilla, or Wequetequock brook, also the farm of Erastus D. Miner and the Simon Rhodes place, and there he built him a dwelling house on the north side of the then Indian path,—now known as the old Post road,—where he lived the remainder of his life, dying in 1683, aged sixty-nine years. His widow died in 1685.

"James York, Sr., m. Joannah —; the family name of his wife is not known, neither the place of their marriage; but the date thereof must have been about 1637. Two children are mentioned, Abigail, b. about 1638-9, who m. John Beebe, of New London, and James York, Jr.

"James York, Jr., b. June 14, 1648. He doubtless came to Stonington, Conn., with his father, when under age, for his name is mentioned in the town records several times before the date 1672, when Savage says, 'He sold his estate in Boston, Mass., where he was engaged in business, and came to Stonington,' for on the Stonington town records, under date of Jan. 15, 1667, '100 acres of land layed out to James York, Jr.,' and he was also one of the men who received land grants for service in Indian

[Pendleton Gen., pp. 65, 66, 119.]

Thomas Pendleton (69), son of James and Elizabeth (Brown) Pendleton [Thomas (2), Thomas], b., Westerly, R. I., Jan. 3, 1718-19, and d. about 1809, probably at Deer Island, N. B., while on a visit to his sons.

On Mar. 18, 1742-43, "Caleb Pendleton, grandfather, & James Pendleton, father," deeded to Thomas Pendleton, husbandman, of Westerly, about three hundred acres of land in that town. [W. L. E., IV, 44.] He was admitted freeman at Westerly, May 1, 1744, and with "Darkis" Pendleton witnessed receipt given to Benoni Smith by Jonathan Brown, Mar. 6, 1747, for the legacy the latter's wife received in the will of Caleb Pendleton. [Westerly C. & P. Rec., III, 330.]

In 1753, Thomas Pendleton acted as executor of his father's will, and July 6 in that year he sold his property in Westerly, and on the same day bought from his half-brother, James Pendleton, Jr., land in Stonington, Conn., for £1200. This property he sold to John Randall, Jr., for £888, Jan. 28, 1756, and on the same day bought of Thomas Noyes, Jr., for £900, land at Pawcatuck. His deed disposing of his property has not so far been found, as the early Stonington deeds are indexed only for grantees.

Tradition says that Thomas Pendleton was a whalerman, and that on one of his voyages to Greenland he put in at Castine, where, excited by the beauty of the Penobscot Bay region, he determined to settle. In the probating of Col. Joseph Pendleton's estate, 1761, he received £101, which may have been due him as the master of one of the Colonel's vessels. At any rate, he removed to what is now Islesboro, Me., a few years before the Revolution; and when he had established himself there, he brought his entire family to the island, with the exception of his son Nathaniel, who followed later.

Half an acre of land in the will of Eleazer Brown was set apart for a burying-ground. Here, above the ashes of the long-time dead, are the tablets and monuments of many of the descendants of Eleazer Brown (11) and Ann Pendleton, his wife; and James Brown (38) and Elizabeth Randal, his wife, whose daughter was Thankful Brown. The monument of Elder Simeon Brown, reminding the passer-by of his fifty years' service and that he was founder of the Second Baptist Church, in 1705, also serves as a reminder of the obligations which an illustrious ancestry imposes upon their descendants even to remote lands and to remote generations.

Immediately after this genealogy is issued, a fund of five hundred dollars will be raised to place this cemetery, long neglected, under perpetual care.

twelve others (one of whom was Joseph Elliott, who afterward married a half sister of Thomas) were taken prisoners, and marched to the camp of the Indians, tied securely and closely guarded by their captors until the next morning; they were then taken to the bank of the river and stripped of all their clothes except their shirts, and, led by two savages each, marched in file to be tomahawked by a squaw, whose son, a young chief, was killed at Exeter on July 1, 1778. Thomas attempted to escape, and had nearly crossed the river when he was overtaken by the Indians, forced to return, and was instantly speared and tomahawked.*

Thomas Brown (47) m. (2) Patience Brockway. She was French, and Thomas first met her in Jamaica, when on a southern voyage. He was ill with fever, and she took care of him until he recovered. He went to the Wyoming Valley with the Connecticut settlers, and in 1754 received his share of land. He returned to Connecticut, and then he moved to Quaker Hill, Dutchess County, on the border of New York State. In 1776 he again went to Pennsylvania, and settled in Wilkes-Barre. He built a stockade on his own land as a protection against the Indians. At the time of the Massacre he, with his family, went into Forty Fort. Thomas followed the sea in his earlier days, and was crippled by exposure and an injury to his knee, and could not join the army; but he assisted in defending the fort. His son Thomas went out with the army, and was slain, as stated above. The day after the Massacre, Patience (Brockway) Brown was preparing to make bread, when word came to them to leave the fort. She gathered up the dough in her apron and carried it with her. She baked the dough in their camp fire as they journeyed through the wilderness. This bread, and berries which they picked, with the milk from a cow which they drove with them, kept the family from starving. They had five children with them; one, a boy about three years old, died the second day of their journey, and they dug a place by the side of a log and buried him, covering the grave with leaves. Joseph Elliott, who married their daughter Patience, accompanied them.

The following narrative was related by Daniel Brown (104), who was probably the last survivor of the Wyoming Massacre: "We moved to the Wyoming Valley, Pa., in 1776, and lived on the river bank, about 50 yards below the Market Street bridge, Wilkes Barre, Pa., and were there at the time of the massacre. Our family then consisted of my father, Thomas Brown, and his wife Patience (Brockway) Brown, an older half brother, Thomas Brown 2d, two older brothers, and three children younger than myself; and Jabez, and Joseph Elliott who came into the valley with us and took part in all our affairs until the campaign of General Sullivan, in which they bore a part. The family life was uneventful until the summer of 1778, when the invasion of the Indians and Tories, under Walter Butler, made the valley a theater of bloody carnage and suffering. This culminated on July 3 when all the able bodied men and boys marched from Forty Fort to offer battle to their foes who were encamped in the upper part of the valley. Without an attempt to describe the conflict it is sufficient to say that our people were overcome and in the rout were ruthlessly overtaken and slain. Of those belonging to the family who in the running marched to the battle and of which this narrative treats — the two Elliotts, and Thomas Brown 2d — only Jabez returned at night, and brought the news that Thomas was among the slain; while Joseph his brother was among the missing, which meant a fate worse than death — savage torture. The night after the massacre was long to be remembered — mourning for the absent ones, mingled with fears that the savages would in the night sweep down upon those left alive and thus make complete destruction throughout the valley. All night the survivors made hasty preparations to fly as soon as the morning broke, and seek safety wherever it might be found. Jabez Elliott and the Browns lashed two canoes near to each other, and over these made a platform large enough to carry the children and the mother, while father prepared to lead his three horses down the river shore to Catawissa, their destination. Just as they were about to start Joseph Elliott came in sight in a very sad condition; his only garment was a shirt and his body was all covered with blood. We did not have time to hear his story, but at once placed him on the float and made him as comfortable as we could and started down the river. We arrived at Catawissa the next day, and then went by Fort Allen to Strouds. On our return from Strouds we came nearly in the route afterwards located as the Eastern and Wilkes-Barre turnpike. We came to Bear Creek at noon of a very rainy day; the creek was high and our only way to cross it was to fell a tree tall enough to reach the other side — we felled several before we succeeded, as the water would swing them down the stream. Previous to our arrival here it had been necessary to send to Wilkes Barre for food and fire. In the effort Jabez Elliott and the horse he rode came near being drowned, and our bundle of spare clothes was lost. Our condition when we got over Bear Creek was sad indeed with no relief nearer than Wilkes Barre, to which Elliott had gone for help. The rain continued and all were wet, chilled and hungry. The children cried and could not be comforted. We nearly perished in that dark and dreadful night, which I shall always remember as the time of my greatest suffering. Elliott came early in the morning, and we soon had a big fire and our hunger was appeased. Soon starting again upon our journey we reached Wilkes Barre at evening. The next year after Sullivan's campaign we moved to Wyalusing, Pa., and settled near where I have since lived."

Joseph Elliott's story: "After I was taken prisoner, myself and others were taken to the camp of the Indians and tied securely, and closely guarded by our captors until the next morning. Twelve of us were then taken near the second bank of the river within the present town of Wyoming; we were stripped of all our clothes except our shirts and, led by two savages each, were marched in file to be tomahawked by a squaw whose son, a young chief, was killed at Exeter on the 1st. day of July. This tragedy occurred on the 4th. I was next to the last in line. Titus Hammond, the last, and I determined to escape if the least chance offered. As we moved to our turn, I saw just before me the body of a fallen tree over which our path led. As I came near it, I sprang forwards, planting both feet against it, and instantly jumping backwards I tore myself away from my guards. Hammond cleared himself at the same moment, and we both jumped down the bank. I ran towards the river, and Hammond turned to the right and hid in a fallen tree top. Between the place of execution and the river rye was standing, and it was higher than my head. It had been trailed by fugitives the day before, so I followed one. The pursuing Indians could not follow my path for certainty on account of the other trails so I gained a few minutes and this gave me time to get into deep water before they commenced shooting. As soon as I could I commenced to swim under the water, only raising my head for breath. Once when I came up a bullet hit me under my shoulder blade disabling one arm, but I turned and swam on my back the rest of the way using the other arm. As soon as I was over and away from the river, I put a piece of my shirt into the bullet hole to stop the blood. I found a loose horse and, with a piece of bark for a bridle, rode into Wilkes Barre. I had a hard time of it with the wound for several weeks but being tough, recovered."

Joseph Elliott and his brother joined the Rangers and went up the river with General Sullivan. Jabez Elliott, while guarding the cattle of the expedition, was killed by the Indians near Athens, they coming upon him by stealth. Joseph Elliott m. (1) Patience Brown; d. without issue; m. (2) Deborah Lewis. He d. when over ninety years of age, leaving many descendants. He is buried at Merryall, Bradford Co., Penn.

In 1789 Thomas Brown (47) and his family went in canoes up the Susquehanna River to what is now Wyalusing Township, and settled there, calling the place Browntown. Most of the land there is still in possession of his descendants, and some farms have never been transferred by deed, being willed from father to son. He was one of the first to rest in the old cemetery at Wyalusing Village. His is said to be the oldest marked grave in Bradford County. In August, 1910, Livingston Manor Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Washington, D. C., placed a D. A. R. marker on his grave, the small flag being placed on the marker by Chas. A. Brumbaugh, of Washington, he being a great-great-grandson.

Before Patience (Brockway) Brown went into Forty Fort with her family, the children buried outside, by a tree, a pair of steelyards, and a mortar and pestle in which Mrs. Brown ground corn and spices. After their return to Wilkes-Barre, these were dug up; and on the marriage of one of the daughters, her mother presented them to her. The mortar and pestle are now cherished possessions of a great-granddau., Charlotte Segar.

Ezekiel Brown was a man of great energy and hospitality. In 1792 he settled in Wyalusing, and cleared land and built a log house; he soon had a fine farm cleared, and a comfortable home, which was frequently used as a resting-place by newly arrived settlers until they could build houses for themselves. For many years his son-in-law Capt. John Mintz and he owned the best residences in the valley. Ezekiel owned three black slaves,—Uncle Tom and wife, and Timothy Croggins. He held his tract of land under the Connecticut title, and after he had occupied it for some time, and made improvements, a gentleman came to his house and informed him that he, the stranger, owned that land. Mr. Brown replied that if he owned any land there, it was seven feet below the surface; and, casting a glance toward his rifle, added that unless he was gone immediately he would be put in possession of it. The stranger took the hint and left.

came from Connecticut and bought a large tract of land under the Connecticut title, much of which he could not hold under the Pennsylvania title. He had, however, several hundred acres left in Sheshequin, Penn., under the new law. Ella Viola Brown (315), dau. of Daniel Warren (147) and Catherine Adaline (King) Brown, b. Sept. 25, 1848; d. July 21, 1912; m. (1), June 20, 1869, by Rev. David Craft, Capt. George V. Myer, b., Monroeton, Penn., Aug. 5, 1841. He was a civil engineer. Sept. 9, 1861, he enlisted for three years in Co. K, 50th Regt. Penn. Vols., recruited at Monroe; promoted from 1st Sergeant to 2d Lieutenant, May 1, 1864; to Captain, May 1, 1865; mustered out with company, July 30, 1865. He was taken prisoner at Battle of Wilderness, and confined in Libby Prison; he escaped through the famous tunnel, was re-captured when near Union lines, and taken back to Richmond. From starvation, sleeping in swamps many days, and traveling nights, he was taken with fever before reaching Richmond, and was unconscious for several weeks. When he recovered, he found he had been cared for at a private house where he had been taken by Masons (he being a 32d degree member of that order). He was the soldier who had a small American flag secreted in his boot when he entered Libby Prison, and on the Fourth of July he climbed up the rafters of the old prison and pushed the little flag out through a crack at the front peak of the building, where it was soon discovered by the guards, and shot down. After escaping through the tunnel he, with several others, traveled nights, and slept in swamps during the days, and were fed by colored people. They had been out several days when the "Yankee-hunters,"—composed of men too old, and boys too young, to go into the army,—with the aid of bloodhounds, came upon them while they were in a swamp. They were too weak to fight off the dogs, so they climbed trees to get out of their reach. When the men came up, the younger ones leveled their guns to shoot; but Captain Myer gave the hailing sign of a Mason, and one of the older men recognized it and ordered them not to shoot. The dogs were called off, the prisoners allowed to come down, and they were taken to the railroad, where they were put in a freight-car, under guard, and started for Richmond. After the war, Captain Myer was a civil engineer and pension agent. His health was very poor up to the time of his death, because of hardships while in the army. Mrs. Ella V. Myer m. (2), Apr. 3, 1910. Dwight Hall Bissell.

Waterbury, Jr., was appointed "Commandant of the Battalion ordered to be raised for the defense of the Post at Horseneck and places adjacent, and also all the guards raised for the defense of the seacoast from Horseneck to New Haven inclusive." The force was composed of drafts from the militia, and amounted to a brigade of two battalions. In July it joined Washington, while he was encamped at Phillipsburg, and for some time after was under Heath's command on the Winchester line.

Robert Brown (801) bought land in Belchertown of Thomas Willson, Jan. 11, 1795, and on this place he and his two wives are buried. He bought land again, Apr. 17, 1795, and on this place he and his first wife, Lydia D. Brown, died. On this last purchase there was a saw-mill. The

IN MEMORIAM.

Long has she walked among us,
But here her journey ends;
She has reached the goal at last
Towards which each footstep tends;
A weary time she waited
For the messenger of light
Who should bid her soul arise
And heavenward take its flight.

There 's a message on her upturned face
Her silent lips may never tell,
As tho' she heard the angels whisper,
And we know that all is well.
That all is well —
Assurance sweet for us who tarry here a space
Till we, too, shall hear the summons
To meet our Saviour face to face.

We who have still to front the world
And brave its storm and strife,
We well might envy her her rest,
Who has entered into life.
So calm is she in dreamless sleep,
No throb disturbs her breast,
As though an angel held her hands —
How sweet, how sweet is rest!

The following is an extract from "History of Kansas City, Mo.":

"Stephen Northrop Dwight, who spent his last days in Kansas City, was prominently identified with the development of the West as a representative of financial banking and mining interests. His superior business ability, enterprise, and ready grasp of a situation enabled him to become closely associated with the establishment and successful conduct of enterprises which proved important factors in the growth and progress of this section of the country.

"Stephen N. Dwight spent his boyhood, and received his education, in New Haven, Conn. His father moved to Michigan, and he began his business career in Kalamazoo, Mich.; but study of the business situation of the country, in various sections, led him to believe that the West offered splendid opportunities, and accordingly he made his way to Kansas in 1874. His first location was at Independence, that State, where he engaged in the banking business. He continued in that business until about ten years before his death. He was connected with several banks in Kansas, also organized, and was cashier, of the American National Bank at Fort Smith, Ark., but not liking the climate sold his interest and went to Leadville, where he organized the American National Bank and was its president. Wanting to be out of doors more he sold his interest in the bank and engaged in mining for a time; he then went to California, where he stayed more than a year; but it seemed too far away from all friends and relatives, so he returned to Kansas and became identified with the development of the mining resources at Galena, Kan. He bought the water-works, which he enlarged and improved in every way. He closed out his mining interests before moving to Kansas City, but owned and operated the water-works up to the time of his death. One of the elements of his exceedingly successful career was the quickness with which he noted an opportunity that others passed heedlessly by, when he saw a chance.

“Mr. Dwight’s political allegiance was given to the Republican Party, and fraternally he was connected with the Masons and Knights of Pythias. His face indicated that character, balance, harmony, and sound judgment were among his natural traits. Quietude of deportment, easy dignity, and a frankness and cordiality of address were among his noticeable characteristics. He was ever ready to meet any obligation of life with the confidence and courage that come of conscious personal ability, right conception of things, and an habitual regard for what was best in the exercise of human activities for profitable investment or for the establishment of an enterprise that promised success. Forming his plans readily, he was determined in their execution, and carried forward to successful completion whatever he undertook. In his mental review of the West he noted the bright outlook before Kansas City, and showed his faith in its future by the purchase of considerable property. Time demonstrated his wisdom in this regard in increased value of his realty holdings. The erection of the handsome office structure known as the Dwight Building, at the corner of Tenth St. and Baltimore Ave., is an evidence of his foresight and faith in Kansas City’s future greatness. This magnificent building was the pioneer of its kind, and added an important step to Kansas City’s realty growth that can only be estimated by a review of the improved property conditions of that immediate locality. The success of this undertaking added a stimulus to Kansas City’s real-estate interests at a time when most needed, and stands as a monument to his enterprise and judgment. The property is still owned by Mrs. Dwight. Mr. Dwight was a man of domestic taste, finding his greatest happiness at his own fireside, and a most congenial companionship existed between himself and his wife.

“Mrs. Dwight was educated at Baker University, a Methodist institution, at Baldwin, Kan. She was a helpmate in every sense of the word.

Daniel Brown (24), son of Thomas (2) and Hannah (Collins) Brown, b., Stonington, Conn., Oct. 9, 1696; d. Aug. 30, 1771, in the seventy-fifth year of his age. Interment on the Christopher Brown farm, two miles south of Pendleton Hill. He m. (1), June 21, 1721, Mary Palmer Breed, dau. of John and Mercy (Palmer) Breed. She d. 1744. The marriage certificate says: "Married, June 21, 1721, by Rev. Hezekiah Lord, Pastor of the Church in Preston, Conn." He m. (2), Prudence —, who d. Dec. 2, 1768, aged sixty-nine years. She had no children. In 1722 his father, Thomas (2), deeded to his son a tract of land about one mile east from his homestead. This was nine months after his marriage to Mary Breed. Here Daniel and Mary built their house, the original site of which is seen by the cut; and here, on the same spot, Nathan (1110), his son, erected a new house.

We find that Daniel (24) removed to the north part of the town near his son Captain Christopher (1109). He was active in church work, living in the immediate vicinity of the First Baptist Meeting-house, in Stonington, which was built on land given by him and Thomas Holmes. The church was organized in 1743. Probably the first interments on the Christopher Brown farm were his first wife, Mary (Breed) Brown, in 1744, his second wife, Prudence, in 1768, and Daniel, in 1771. Their headstones were imported from England. This burying-ground is enclosed by a heavy stone wall. Years ago this enclosure of the dead is said to have been well kept; at present the grounds need attention where these honored dead rest.

The original deed from Thomas Brown (2) to his son Daniel Brown (24) has been preserved and handed down from generation to generation: to his son Christopher (59), to his son Christopher, Jr. (107), to his son Nathan W., and to his son Frank E. Brown, and is now [1914] in his possession; also other original ancient documents, in a good state of preservation.

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

The Breed family will be of interest in this connection, as Daniel Brown (24) married into the Breed family.

Allen Breed, the progenitor of the Breed family, appears first in Lynn, Mass., in 1630. He was b. in England in 1601. The name of his wife is unknown. He d. Mar. 17, 1692, and had five children.

Their son:

Allen Breed, b. 1626; m. Mary —, and had six children.

Their son:

John Breed, b., Lynn, Jan. 18, 1663; m. (1), Apr. 28, 1686, Mary Kirtland, b. July 15, 1667; d. Jan. 28, 1688; dau. of Sarah. He resided in Lynn until after the death of his wife and dau., and then removed to Stonington, Conn. He m. (2), June 8, 1690, Mercy Palmer, b., Stonington, 1668; dau. of Dea. Gershom Palmer and wife, Ann, dau. of Capt. George Denison and wife, Ann (Borodell) Denison.

Mr. Breed purchased land of Gershom Palmer, the father of his second wife. Gershom Palmer fixed his permanent place of abode on the eastern slope of Taugwonk, in Stonington, locating his house on the present site of the residence of Elias H. Miner, in Angwilla, so-called. Here at this house were frequently held the Stonington town meetings. A stone marked "G. P.," that was in the chimney, was preserved by Mr. Miner when he removed the old house, and was set in the underpinning of the present house, near the east side door. The lineage of the Palmer family of Stonington is of peculiar interest, as they were of sterling worth, who placed their good names among the best citizens of Stonington. The progenitor was Walter Palmer, who settled in Stonington as early as 1628. He was born in London, England, in 1585. At the time of his settlement here he had reached the rugged steep of life's decline. [Wheeler.] He is buried in the old Wequetequock burial-ground, dying Nov. 10, 1661. It is not my purpose to give the records of the Palmer family of Stonington, but to show the lineage of Mercy, the grand-dau. of Walter Palmer.

John Breed, who m. Mercy Palmer, built his house in Angwilla, about one mile east from her father's house, and but a few rods west of the house of Henry Breed. In a radius of two miles and less many of the Breed families built their homes. It was known as Breedtown. Where Hermon C. Brown's house stands was Jesse Breed's house, probably built by his father, Amos Breed. But many of the old houses built in this locality have been removed, and but few houses now take their places. John Breed and wife Mercy are buried in the old Wequetequock burying-ground. We read:

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

In memory of a pious pair, this carved stone was erected here, viz., of Mr. John Breed and his wife Mercy, who lived together in ye marriage state in a most religious manner about 64 years and then deceased, leaving a numerous offspring. Rev. Valentine Wightman, the father of Mary Wightman mentioned above, organized the first Baptist church in Connecticut, and the first Baptist church west of Providence, R. I.,— at Groton,— in 1705. He assisted in planting the first Baptist church in the city and State of New York. He was a well-educated and scholarly man; aided in planting churches in Stonington, Waterford, and Lyme, Conn. He was pastor of the Groton church forty-two years, and was succeeded by his son Rev. Timothy Wightman, who was tried by the erratic ideas and practices of a band of Rogerine Quakers, that aimed at times to disturb his meetings; but his serenity and good judgment foiled their designs. They would attend his meetings, taking with them their basket-work, and during the service one of them addressed the minister: "Timothy, thou liest; thou knowest thou liest." He was a plain, fearless, discreet, faithful preacher, like his honored father before him. He also served the Groton church for forty-two years. The next to succeed Rev. Timothy Wightman was his youngest son, Rev. John Gano Wightman, who was a man distin-

PEACE.

"The Peace of God, which passeth understanding,"
O gift divine to our sin-burdened lives,
A balm thou art in every truth for healing
The wounds left sore in him who with sin strives.

First Hope, a pure, sweet flower, comes to lead us,
To bid us seek the future promise fair.
Alas! Reality's cold blast soon strikes us,
And Hope's poor withered stalk is left all bare.

Then Love's clear star makes bright the path of life.
"Oh, surely this is real, is true," we cry;
But all too soon our loved ones are called from us,
And "Love was but a meteor," we sigh.

But Peace, God's blessed, is left to us,
And what could we ask more than this sweet rest?
From all earth's cares and sorrows we may turn,
And only know we are leaning on His breast.

They attend the Methodist Episcopal Church at Melvin, of which Mrs. Perry is a member. Mrs. Perry received the degree of B.S. from Lincoln University, Lincoln, Ill., 1871, and taught in public schools of Lincoln for three years, 1871-74; in Loda for two years, 1875-77.

Mr. Perry, at the age of eighteen, enlisted in 1st Conn. Reg. Cavalry Vols., Oct. 31, 1861, at New London, Conn., and was mustered into service at Camp Tyler, West Meriden, Conn., Nov. 4, 1861. He was promoted to Corporal Feb. 6, 1864, and honorably discharged Nov. 2, 1864. He served in General Custer's Division under General Sheridan. He was engaged in the Battle of Cedar Creek, during which engagement occurred Sheridan's twenty-mile ride from Winchester. At the close of the war Mr. Perry sought again the schools to become an instructor. He attended the Syracuse (N. Y.) University and the Illinois State Normal University. Following this preparation he taught in our schools for twelve years, one year as principal of the Buckley public school, and three years as principal of the Loda public school. In the fall of 1878 he entered the Rush Medical School, at Chicago, and graduated Feb. 24, 1880, as M.D. He came immediately to Melvin and began the practice of medicine, where he remained until his death. His townsmen elected him a member of the Town Board, and for three years honored him with the presidency. For several years he was a member of the Board of School Directors and County Coroner. He was a charter member of the Melvin G. A. R. Post, and a charter member of Melvin Masonic Lodge No. 811, being the oldest in membership in this body. During his twenty years of medical practice he gave much time to general reading. He was esteemed in his home as a good physician and entertaining guest. His sons and daughters are, after a manner, his educated ideas; and the preparation for life-work by so many members of one family is no small comment on the directing power and influence behind it all. He wanted his children educated for the good of society and the welfare of the nation as well as for their own personal advantage.—Extract from Melvin Transcript.

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

Mahitabel Brown (35), dau. of John (9) and Elizabeth (Miner) Brown, son of Thomas and Mary (Newhall) Brown, of Lynn, Mass. b., Stonington, Conn., Aug., 1712; m. (1), Stonington, Jan. 13, 1731, "by ye Rev. Mr. Ebenezer Russell," Nathaniel Swan, b., Stonington (Swantown Hill), Apr. 13, 1709, the first child b. in Stonington by the name of Swan. The coming of John Swan to Swantown Hill was when the country was in a primitive state, and this great Hill was one vast forest where the woodman awoke the echoes with his axe to let in the sunlight, and there to stir the earth and scatter the seed. Hither came Mahitabel Brown Swan, then a bride, five miles away from her home, where her father had made an early settlement, in 1680.

A sketch of the Swan family will here be given, then will follow the children of the above.

"The first known of John Swan, the father of Nathaniel above, was when he was living in Haverhill, Mass. He m. Mrs. Susannah Wood Aug. 1, 1699, dau. of Philip Eastman and granddau. of Roger Eastman. Her first m. was to Thomas Wood, May 16, 1693. Thomas and child Susannah were killed by the Indians Mar. 15, 1697. They lived in Haverhill until 1707, where three of their children were born.

"Haverhill was a frontier town of nearly 70 years, and but few towns suffered so severely from the Indians. At this period we can have but a faint conception of the sufferings of the inhabitants. Surrounded by an immense and mostly unexplored forest, constantly exposed to the attacks of savages, are circumstances that make us wonder why they should continue to march onward and onward into the wilderness,—terrific for its extent,—and unfurl the banner of civilization under the very shadow of the enemies' wigwam. Thus did John Swan and his heroic wife begin their home in Haverhill.

"Two Indians attacked their house. Mrs. Swan saw them approaching, and they determined, if possible, to save their own lives and the lives of their children from the knives of the ruthless butchers. They immediately placed themselves against the door. The Indians rushed against it, but finding it could not be easily opened, they commenced their operations more systematically. One of them placed his back against it, so that he could make his whole strength bear upon it, while the other pushed against him. The strength of the besiegers was greater than that of the besieged, and Mr. Swan, almost despaired of saving himself and family, said to his wife that he thought it would be better to let them come in. But his resolute and courageous wife had no such intentions. The Indians had now succeeded in partly opening the door, and one of them was crowding himself in, while the other was pushing lustily after. The heroic wife saw that there was no time for parleying. She seized her spit (an iron about three feet long, pointed at the end for holding meat over a fire for cooking), — a deadly weapon in the hands of a woman, as it proved,—and, collecting all the strength she possessed, drove it through the body of the foremost. This was too warm a reception for the Indians, and was a resistance from a source, and with a weapon, they little expected; and surely, who else would ever think of spitting a man? Thus, by the heroic courage of a wife and mother, this family was saved from a bloody grave.”

This record came wholly from tradition. It was related by an aged and venerable gentleman who had often heard it told by his grandfather. —“Mirick.” History of Haverhill, by Geo. W. Chase, p. 223.

John Swan removed to Stonington with his family in the year 1707, locating himself on what is now No. Stonington, known as Swantown Hill, where the rest of his children were born. He d. Jonathan Brown [B. G. 37], son of Eleazer (11) and Ann (Pendleton) Brown, son of Thomas and Mary (Newhall) Brown, b. July 12, 1694; m. Elizabeth Pendleton; she was baptized June 25, 1699, in First Church, Stonington, Conn. They lived upon land inherited by Ann Pendleton from her father, James. No list of the children of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Pendleton) Brown appears upon the vital records of Westerly, but the land and probate records of the town give us four of their names. From the foregoing records we may set down the issue of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Pendleton) Brown in about the following order.

Children:

- I. Jonathan Brown, Jr., m., Sept. 30, 1742, Elizabeth Burroughs.

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

He may also have been the Jonathan Brown who m., Westerly, Mar. 1, 1757, Elizabeth Burdick [Westerly Rec.], although this record would be equally applicable to his namesake already referred to, as would also be the following: "29th Dec., 1760, Elizabeth Brown, widow, was apptd. admx. of the estate of Jonathan Brown Jr., and on the 26th Oct., 1761, she appeared before the Council and presented an account against the estate for 'keeping two of the deceased's Orphan Children forty weeks each.'" [Westerly C. & P. Rec., III, 636, 677.] Still, on the 17th of Oct., 1768, "Elizabeth Brown, widow of Jonathan Brown, late of Westerly, dec.," m. John Moon, of Exeter. We do not find that the other Jonathan Brown was ever at Westerly. [Pendleton Gen., by Everett Pendleton.]

- II. Eleazer, d., probably, in the French and Indian War; m., Nov. 10, 1742, Sarah Die [Dye] [Second Ch. Ston.]
- III. Elizabeth, b. 1724; d., Westerly, R. I., Sept. 15, 1813, aged eighty-nine years [G. S.]; m., Nov. 9, 1743, William Bromley. [First Ch. Ston. Rec.]. Their children are given upon the Westerly Records, and William Bromley's will is also to be found there. They were the parents of that Perry Bromley whose marriage to Dorcas Pendleton was the source of much perplexity.
- IV. Ebenezer, b. 1724-25; d., No. Stonington, Conn., May 10, 1816, aged ninety-two years. He operated a grist-mill at Westerly, near the east end of the Pawcatuck Bridge, until about 1799, when he bought a seventy-six acre farm in No. Stonington, where he lived the rest of his life. The gravestone beside his, names as his wife Abigail, who d. Sept. 12, 1811, aged sixty-five [B. G., p. 533]. She was probably his second wife, as there seems no doubt but that he was the Ebenezer Brown who m., Westerly, Feb. 5, 1756, Anna Wells, of Stonington, and had children [recorded upon Westerly Rec.]: Caleb, Hannah, Lydia, John, Amy, Sarah, Dorothy, and Nathan. On Oct. 25, 1790, Capt. Caleb Brown was appointed guardian of Ebenezer Brown and family. [West. C. & P. Rec., V, 55.] Only one child of Ebenezer's is referred to in B. G., and this one is called Joshua, b. 1782. [Pendleton Gen., p. 70.]

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

Ebenezer Brown (IV), son of Jonathan (37), son of Eleazer Brown (11) and Ann Pendleton, b. 1724-25; d., No. Stonington, Conn., May 10, 1816, aged ninety-two years; m. Abigail Davis, d. Sept. 12, 1811, aged sixty-five years. He lived in Westerly, R. I., and owned considerable real estate. On the first map of Westerly, published in 1795, is given "Brown's Mill" (grist-mill), running two sets of stones near the east end of Pawcatuck Bridge, by which name the village was known for many years. He sold his mill in Westerly and bought a farm in the eastern part of No. Stonington one mile west of Clark's Falls, but not on the highway; it is entered near the home of Daniel Wright, a long-time resident on the road that leads to Boom Bridge. He removed to this farm in 1799, where he spent his remaining days. The house is still standing, but has been for a long time vacant. From a well-kept and walled burying-ground near the old house many of these records were taken.

his efforts a neat and commodious chapel was erected. He served as Chaplain of the G. A. R. Post at Wickford, and as Chaplain and Adjutant of Slocum Post of Providence. For seven years he was connected with the Evening Telegram as Grand-Army correspondent. He also occupied for several years a position of trust in the Conference as Treasurer of Conference Claimants' Fund. He never forgot his spiritual birthplace, Willimantic Camp-ground, and for several years rendered efficient services as a member of the executive committee, at the same time reporting for the Hartford Courant during camp-meeting week. As a preacher he was scriptural, methodical, earnest, and instructive. He was a student of the Bible, and most heartily believed and taught what he found therein. Such a preacher could not fail to interest his hearers and to build up his churches.

This farm now, in 1914, owned by the heirs of Zebulon Y. Brown (1699), was leased to Cyrus W. Brown, Jr., the father of the compiler of this book. To show the great value of this farm in 1833, and the rental yearly, which at the then current prices amounted to $515 (five hundred and fifteen dollars), this lease is here transcribed. The largest item in the lease was cheese, at five cents a pound; now [1914] three times as much — yet it is said it does not pay to farm.

At the time of this lease, No. Stonington had twenty-seven hundred inhabitants, and the strong young men with increasing families were seeking better and cheaper lands in the State of New York, and had been for more than thirty years.

James Brown [B. G. 38, pp. 12, 14], his records and the names of his children, will follow in this connection, with comments and facts known personally to the compiler.

James Brown (38), son of Eleazer (11) and Ann (Pendleton) Brown, b., Stonington, Conn., July 1, 1696; d., No. Stonington, Conn., Feb. 2, 1750; m., May 5, 1718, by Rev. James Noyes, of Stonington, Elizabeth Randall, b. July 4, 1696; d. Aug. 25, 1786, at the ripe age of over ninety years. Interments in Brown Cemetery. [For more complete comments, see B. G., p. 14.]

It must be remembered that when James Brown was b. the country was in a primitive state, almost a vast wilderness. His father, Eleazer, with his axe, had begun to let in the sunshine in a few places, and to stir the virgin soil and scatter a little seed, making an opening for future settlers. James Brown built his house on lands first set off to his father, Eleazer (11), on the most beautiful situation of any of the lands purchased by the three Brown brothers. This house built by James Brown was located opposite what is now the Union Cemetery. The compiler remembers the old, old house from 1840 to 1845, which soon after was torn down. It was a one-story house, fronting south, with east end fronting the country road. The house and barn were built of native lumber, sawed at the mill erected by his father, and assisted by the older son, Jonathan (37), and James, the subject of this sketch. The barn fell down before the house was pulled down. The house contained but four rooms on the first floor; there might have been an attic. The compiler was in and out of this house during five years of his boyhood. The house stood on a gradual sloping plateau, affording a most picturesque view for miles around. The land is rich and fertile. The father of the compiler hired the land for a number of years, and on the same the compiler worked for five years. After the house was removed, the well covered, and grounds cleared and leveled off, there was not a thing to show the spot where these illustrious children were born. In this primitive house, standing on this beautiful location, the following children were born.

Joshua Brown lived on the James Brown homestead until the death of his mother, in 1786, and his children were all b. here. He then removed to a farm in the southerly part of Stonington, where he built his house, living here until he died, Sept. 26, 1824.

The foregoing is written especially to show the parentage of Thankful Brown and her sister Elizabeth, and to show the identical location where they were b. and m. It is interesting to note that Thankful (Brown) Main named her oldest son, James, for her father; and it has been interesting to notice for five succeeding generations that the name James appears in regular order among her descendants. This was discovered when the B. and M. G. was written.

Now will follow the marriages of these two sisters and their children, being a reprint from B. and M. G. (p. 51).

 300a. Simeon, b. Sept. 16, 1772. His records should have followed in this connection, but they were given in B. and M. G. (p. 33). It has since been found that he was the son of Timothy Main and Elizabeth (Brown) Main, the family here under consideration.

With this introduction now will follow the records of Dea. Daniel Main (291), who m. Grace Main (297). They were compiled by Mrs. Cora Jane Mayne, née Brown, dau. of Stephen and Lucinda A. (Ellison) Brown, Burlington Flats, N. Y. Much credit is due Mrs. Mayne for her time, expense, and persistent effort in placing on the pages of history the descendants of Thankful Brown, dau. of James Brown and Elizabeth Randall, who. m. Jeremiah Main, and her sister Elizabeth Brown, who m. Timothy Main.

"There can be no more sincere and disinterested friendship on earth than that which exists in the bosom of parents towards their children. For their happiness they are willing to sacrifice much; for them they toil and struggle; for them they live, and for them, if need be, they would die."

Daniel Main (1800), son of Jeremiah and Thankful (Brown) Main, b. Jan. 26, 1761; d. Jan. 30, 1835; m., July 21, 1779, Grace Main, b. Apr. 22, 1761; d. aged ninety-five years; dau. of Timothy and Elizabeth (Brown) Main. Mr. and Mrs. Main lived in the Main Settlement in Connecticut till their children were all born, and at least one, George, married while there. They came to New York State with an ox-team and two horses, and remained for a time at Petersburg, Rensselaer Co. George Main and wife remained a year or so there, at which place their son Jefferson was born. The family came on westward, stopping for a visit with Edward Thurston and Abigail Main [B. and M. G. 287, p. 51], his wife, who lived near Cooperstown, Otsego Co., N. Y. Their dau. Susannah remained a year or more with her aunt Thankful. The family moved on, spending a year in the town of Plainfield, then located near So. Brookfield, Madison Co., N. Y., where Mr. Main purchased a farm of one hundred and sixty acres with a frame house thereon, which was uncommon in those days. This homestead was about three miles from Five Corners, where the church was located, with Elder Simeon Brown, Jr., founder and pastor. Mr. Main owned one of the largest and strongest horses in the vicinity, named "Old Sampson," which he would mount, and ride to church with his wife or dau. Later his dau. Susannah seemed quite willing to go, mounted on the pillion behind her father. Mr. Main was chosen deacon of the church soon after settling in the Main homestead, and his wife and several children became devout members. Dea. Daniel Main (1800) was a very well-educated man; he taught school in Connecticut, and also in New York State, being very proficient in the profession, as some of his descendants have been also. While in Connecticut he often preached, but did not preach much after coming to New York State. He was Justice of the Peace, but farming was his chief occupation. He was tall, rather slender, and a man of commanding appearance. Being a deep thinker he was listened to very attentively, as he also possessed a very pleasing voice.

This meeting-house is owned and occupied by the Seventh Day and First Day Baptist Societies. Organized in 1798, with Elder Simeon Brown, Jr., who settled here, in 1792, as first pastor. The first deacon was Daniel Main (201)

Mrs. Main was short, and rather fleshy. For many years she was blind. She had a severe attack of typhoid fever, during which she was tenderly cared for by her dau. Susannah, and son Ira Miner and wife. After her recovery she could read and sew without even spectacles, some of her handiwork being in existence now [1912].

About one-half acre in the southeast corner of the Main homestead was set aside for burial purposes and known as the Main Cemetery. The first one to be buried there was Thankful (Brown) Main, wife of Jeremiah Main, who d. Mar. 20, 1812, aged ninety-five years. Her son Deacon Daniel and wife beside her, and several in the three following generations rest there. In memory of Dea. Daniel Main and wife a reunion is held yearly. At first it was held on the old homestead, later at the homes of different members of the union; but usually, of late years, at Summit Lake, a very quiet but picturesque place in the vicinity of Burlington Flats, Otsego Co., N. Y.

Burial in the Brown Cemetery. Mr. Brown was a farmer and a cooper. Mrs. Brown was bereft of the love and help of a very kind husband, but reared to noble manhood and womanhood her large family. Another affliction soon followed, when death claimed her beloved son Almon. She was a very quiet, unassuming character, loved best by those who knew her most intimately. When her son's wife, Philura, was dying, she placed her young babe in its grandmother's arms, saying, "I give Henrietta to you." Thus she proved a noble mother to her also. A woman often sought in time of sickness, she filled her mission in life full of kind deeds. Her attitude in regard to temperance is best illustrated by the following instance. She was riding along one day with her son Stephen Taylor, when they saw a man lying intoxicated by the roadside. She turned to her son, saying, "I had rather bury a son of mine than see him in that condition; it would be far easier for me." Her sons were very temperate, not even having the habit of sweet-cider drinking, and only one, the eldest, used tobacco. But one son, Stephen Taylor, survives her. Though past his eighty-seventh birthday his mind is clear and alert; and though he is rather feeble physically, to him, mostly, is due the credit of the history penned of Dea. Daniel Main and wife. Nothing thus written has been fancied on the part of the writer, but facts as related by him.

NOTE.—The children of Justus H. Brown and wife (1805) are given in full in B. G. (p.137).

Mr. Main responded, "Comrades, I will hold second place to no man in seeking to promote the welfare and efficiency of our company, but I can't join you in this baleful practice. I taste no intoxicating liquors myself and can't stifle my conscience by offering it to others." He was not only a great temperance worker, but came out in the front ranks at the dawn of the anti-slavery struggle. For several years he was deprived of his sight, yet he maintained a cheerful disposition. He died at the home of his beloved daughter, Mandana, who tenderly and lovingly fulfilled her duties in a very quiet way. He and his first wife are buried in the Brown Cemetery. Mr. Main was one of the prime movers in establishing and promoting the Main Reunion.

She hopes that they may do justice to the loved ones gone on to their heavenly reward, as well as to those living.

NOTE.— It appears from the above that Eleazer Brown was twice m.

Eleazer Brown (2003), son of Eleazer (39) and Temperance (Holmes) Brown [Eleazer (11), Thomas], b., at Stonington, Conn., June 1, 1728; d. July 11, 1795; buried in the Brown Cemetery, No. Stonington, Conn.; m., Oct. 16, 1755, Anne Green, of Hopkinton, R. I., b. 1735; d. Sept. 15, 1803. Elder Brown was the second pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Stonington [Pendleton Hill]. This was his only pastorate, extending over a period of twenty-seven years. Elder Brown, it is said, had but little education, but was a man of strong native powers, of vivid thought and conception, and of a flowing, rapid delivery. He was rightly esteemed one of the most eminent preachers of his day. In 1791, towards the close of his ministry, there came a great outpouring of the Spirit of God; and the seed faithfully sown began to bear much fruit, and at this revival the church received an accession of fifty-two, making the total membership one hundred and fifty-two. [For a full account, see B. G., pp. 551, 552.]

Elder Eleazer Brown's house stood a few rods east of the Brown Burying-ground, opposite the present parsonage of the Second Church, in No. Stonington, where the cellar is still to be seen. This house was struck by lightning while Elder Brown was preaching in the near-by church. Two young people were killed by lightning, one up stairs and the other down, while shutting windows. The compiler's mother said they were engaged to be married. Another mother reported that they were John and Hulda, but it is not certain about their names.

Children, b. at Stonington:

- 2012. Eleazer Brown, b. July 4, 1757; m. Edith Palmer (2020-2026).

Eleazer Brown (2012), the oldest son of Elder Eleazer (2003) and Anne (Green) Brown, b., at Stonington, Conn., July 4, 1757; m. Edith Palmer.

It is not exactly known when Eleazer Brown removed to the State of New York, but in New York land papers of records of petitions for and grants of land are found many familiar names around Brookfield, Edmeston, and Columbus. Eleazer Brown had a certificate of purchase of 250 acres Dec. 1, 1700, for lot 84, township 10. Also Simeon Brown, Jr., lot 81, 250 acres. He settled in Brookfield. [See B. G., p. 120.] Jabish Brown had a certificate of purchase in 1701, in Chenango Township, of 500 acres. These three early settlers were near relatives, going from their home town, Stonington, at different times.* Thus it would appear that Eleazer Brown (2012) settled at Brookfield.

NOTE.—While it is said that Prentice Brown (2021) was b. at Stonington, I am inclined to believe that it was his father, Eleazer (2012), who blazed the trail into York State when it was comparatively one vast wilderness, in the last half of 1700. Eleazer (2012), with Simeon Brown, Jr. (275) [B. G., p. 120], is mentioned as a pioneer to York State in this same connection in 1701. Therefore I believe that Prentice Brown was born in Madison Co., N. Y. Stonington, Conn., at this time, one hundred years after the three Brown brothers made their settlement in this wilderness, had become very thickly settled, and every acre of available land was under cultivation, and the same spirit of adventure crowded these sons of Elder Eleazer Brown (2003) from their home town, Stonington, to seek new and cheaper land and more productive in the west—"out west," it was then called.

It was with much difficulty and long research that the compiler located these brothers.—Eleazer (2012), Benjamin (2016), and Luther (2017).—for no records are left of where such adventurers fled to.

Luther Brown, 2d (2022), son of Eleazer (2012) and Edith (Palmer) Brown, b. Nov. 14, 1787; d., at Chemung, Ill., Dec. 28, 1853; m., Jan. 19, 1811, Hannah Church, b. Aug. 2, 1791; d., at Sandwich, Mass., Nov. 17, 1883. Luther Brown was a blacksmith.

Nicholson, b., at Hinsdale, Mass., Feb. 11, 1826; d., at Whitesboro, N. Y., May 21, 1868; dau. of Ambrose Nicholson. Mather Church Brown m. (2), May 31, 1871, Elizabeth Wait Allen.

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

The following lines were written by Jesse Brown, Jr., on his death-bed:

Farewell, my dear wife, I leave to your care
Two jewels more precious than diamonds rare.
Oh, train them for Heaven to meet me on high,
And come with them, too, for sure you must die!
Farewell, my dear children, how hard thus to part;
To have met you again would bring joy to my heart.
Oh, meet me in Heaven! We'll part nevermore,
As we roam the fair fields of eternity's shore.

THE MUSIC OF SOLITUDE.

By Margaret E. LaMont, Alfred, N. Y.

I heard the twittering of happy birds,
The lapping of the wavelets on the shore;
I heard the singing of the summer wind,
The swaying of the pine trees — and no more.

And yet 't was not alone the song of bird;
Nor yet of wave, nor wind, nor swaying pine;
But something in them, through them, that I heard,—
A breathing echo of a song divine.

HOW ALPHEUS BROWN AND HIS RECORDS WERE FOUND.

In my first genealogy I had only the name of Alpheus Brown and the fact that he went West.

In 1911 I saw the name of Edwin J. Brown, Oneida, N. Y., where he had been chosen president of the historical society. As his name was not in my first genealogy, when I had so many Browns in Madison County, I at once wrote Mr. Brown, to get his ancestry. He wrote me that his great-grandfather was Alpheus Brown, and that he lived at a place in Stonington, Conn., called Pawcatuck Bridge [which is Westerly, R. I.]. He said he never could connect himself with the numerous Browns in Madison County. He said also that his grandfather's name was Clark. I went to the Westerly Town Records and found that Alpheus Brown, late of Stonington, m. Hannah Burdick, of Hopkinton, R. I. The records from Hopkinton revealed the birth of Clark Brown, his grandfather.

I wrote Mr. Brown of Oneida that the reason he could not connect himself with the numerous Browns of Madison County was that he had lost the key. I sent him the connecting links by which he was related to them. He then gave me the records of Clark Brown, after his birth was found in Hopkinton, down to the present time [1912].

It was then supposed that Clark was an only child; but in 1914 six other children were found, whose records will follow in regular order.

When Ezra became of age he sold the farm in Leyden, Mass., for $4,000. He was a good scholar, a beautiful writer, a school-teacher, a musician, and played the violin after he was seventy-five years of age, for the amusement of the family. Some time in 1815 they removed to Hcmer, N. Y., and he, with his brother Nathan, kept a dry-goods store. He then went to Utica, N. Y., and learned the carpenter's trade and became a boss workman. He built the first Methodist Church in Brookfield, also the Academy, where Lodowick C. York was principal. Mrs. Jennings (2407), in her girlhood, attended this Academy until she began to teach as assistant for L. C. York [see B. G., p. 188]. Mr. Babcock then bought a beautiful farm of over two hundred acres, where he settled for the rest of his life. Their dau. Cynthia had the care of her parents for many years, at their home in Brookfield, until their death. From the Babcock Genealogy (p. 97) is given the following record:

"Oliver Babcock, 3d, son of Oliver, Jr., and Patience (Pendleton) Babcock, b., at Hopkinton, R. I., June 28, 1746; d., at Leyden, Mass., Sept. 11, 1806 or 1809; m., July 18, 1767, Tracy, dau. of Samuel and Ruth (Rogers) Maxson, b. Feb. 13, 1754; d. at Leonardsville, N. Y.

the names given in order of ages. His homestead farm at Leyden, containing one hundred and sixty acres, he gave to his wife during her life, and at her death to his youngest son, Ezra. His sons Ethan, Oliver, and Joseph had each previously received their shares. On the same day the will was signed, he deeded to each of his sons Phineas and Nathan a tract of land. To his son Hezekiah he gave a farm of two hundred acres lying in Brookfield, N. Y. To each of his three daughters, Lois, Patty or Martha, and Susan, he gave $200."

Mr. Murphy d. in 1878. They had one dau., Mrs. C. H. Paine, with whom Mrs. Murphy resided at the time of her death. Laura T. (Babcock) Gorton had serious trouble with one of her eyes, which finally, after an operation, caused her death. This cast deep gloom over the parental home, and made a profound impression on her younger sister, Cynthia, as she recalls her death. Mr. Gorton was certainly one of the best of men and a pillar in the Methodist Church.

He was a strong Republican, and a good citizen, and was greatly missed when he died. He never professed religion, but always gave to the church just the same as he would if he had been a member. He had the old farm homestead, and it is the home of his oldest son, Herbert. Roxie was an active member of the Baptist Church, a teacher of the Bible-class for fifteen consecutive years, and every one of the class were Christians. She used to live, when young, with her Grandmother Brown, and kept the seventh day. Both grandfathers kept the seventh day. Many of the people in Hopkinton, R. I., at that time, as now, keep the seventh day. The mother church of the Seventh Day people is located here, and in 1902 celebrated the two-hundredth anniversary of their organization. The names of the two grandfathers here mentioned were Alpheus Brown and Oliver Babcock. Roxie kept Sunday after her marriage, for there was no Seventh-Day Church in that place.

excellent memory of all the families enabled the compiler to obtain records which in a short time would have been wholly lost. If any members of this family do not have a place in these records it will not be the fault of Mrs. Jennings. In her girlhood she had the advantages of an academic education, and afterwards she became a proficient teacher. Her letters written to the compiler were in good language, evincing a well-trained mind. It was very difficult to locate any one that could tell what had become of Hannah Brown (1314a), the oldest dau. of Alpheus and Hannah (Burdick) Brown, until Mrs. Jennings was located. ## THE BROWN GENEALOGY

GENEALOGICAL RECORD OF JOHN BROWN, SON OF ALPHEUS BROWN
(1286), AND DESCENDANTS.

By ED. M. BROWN.

KNOXVILLE, TENN., May, 1914.

TO THE GENEALOGIST.

Dear Mr. Brown: —

Your ultimatum that we should compile the data for the genealogical record of our grandfather, John Brown, and descendants, was as gratefully received as our knowledge of our own unworthiness is recognized. We also are aware of the fact that a work of the character in which you have been so many years engaged and upon which you have spent so much time and expended so much money must be almost in its entirety a work of love of kindred. We realize we must refrain from approaching the semblance of biography, and less of autobiography, and in as concise manner as possible give you a brief epitome of the milestones on the journey of each figure in this drama called life. We have gone back in thought to those days of youth when and where life first appeared to be real. Where the "old trout brook," commencing in a tiny spring, grew in volume by distance to nourish resources for the home of the little speckled beauty whose attainment by strategy was our acme of triumph. Then home, past grandfather's, in the expectant halo of "See the conquering hero comes!"

Then comes the picture of grandfather and his five sons, in the zenith of manhood, with their affinities, sitting down to a feast prepared by our dear old grandmother in recognition of some anniversary of an epoch in our lives.

These royal dinners continued as the years sped by, with additional chairs around that festal board for the grandchildren, who were never consigned to the "second table" by a grandmother like ours.

Then after the feast, whilst grandmother was directing the usual after-dinner ceremonies, assisted by the daughters she had acquired by a treaty of annexation through the fidelity of her sons, the sons would assume to engage in a wrestling-match with our grandfather, who would grasp each with the fervor of undiminished manhood, and assert that whenever he had a boy who could put his back to the floor he was ready to pass away. We have related the above as construing the spirit of filial devotion which reigned at the time we take up our branch of the family tree. If we grow apart, the spirit is not of him or her with whom we commence our data.

A brief synopsis of the lives of those who followed will be found appended herewith, to accord with the information transmitted to us in spirit of fraternity and affection by those who appreciate your work.

Craving the indulgence of those of whom we have related, in spirit of loyalty and affection, and for yourself, in the language of Rip Van Winkle, who slept for twenty years, to awaken with as dim a vision of genealogy as ourselves, if it were not for you, "May you live long and prosper."

Sincerely yours,

E. M. B.

AND CAPTAIN JAMES LEWIS AND WIFE

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

Capt. James Lewis and Phebe, his wife. The writer is credibly informed that the female descendants of Capt. James Lewis, who d. May 18, 1823, aged sixty-nine years, and is buried with his wife, who d. June 26, 1853, aged ninety-one years, in the cemetery at Ellisburg, are eligible for membership in the D. A. R. Mr. Brown became a prominent local figure by the impressions he created by his sturdy manhood, sterling good sense, and loyalty in his friendships. Always genial, his utterances were terse and practical, coupled with good humor. His mental world was radiant with affection for all his kindred, who confided in him for sympathy or comradeship. The affection between himself and his wife was the embodiment of love in its fullest fruition. He was at one time in the hotel business, but this lacking his conception of a home, he retired to a farm, where he spent the remainder of his days in an enjoyment which was more congenial to his nature. He was an unswerving Democrat of the old school, and connected with the United States Customs Service during President Buchanan's administration.

NOTE.—William Dixon, b., at So. Killingly, Windham Co., Conn., in 1780. He was educated at the Plainfield Academy, which was opened during the Revolutionary War, and was incorporated in 1784 by the General Assembly of Connecticut, being the third school to be incorporated in the State. This academy held a high position, and was in popular favor for many years, its students numbering upwards of one hundred from abroad, together with a large number from Plainfield, at the time William Dixon was a student there.

About 1799 or 1800 Mr. Dixon went to Enfield, Conn., where he taught school, but gave up teaching and studied law. He represented Enfield in the General Assembly for nine terms. He was Town Clerk from 1832 to 1839 inclusive. Wm. Dixon was married, at Enfield, Oct. 15, 1801, to Mary, dau. of Simeon Field, M.D., of Enfield.—Extract from the "Harvey Book," by Oscar Jewell Harvey, pp. 453, 454.

Mr. Dixon was fitted for college at the Plainfield Academy, the same as his father, and in the autumn of 1795, shortly before his twenty-first birthday, entered the Rhode Island College [since 1802, Brown University], Providence. He was graduated with honors in 1799, receiving the degree of A.B. Soon after, he became a student of law at Norwich, Conn. In 1801 he was admitted to the bar, and immediately entered upon the practice of his profession in New London Co., Conn.

In 1802 he removed to the village of Westerly, Washington Co., R. I., where he located, and was admitted to the bar. He continued to pursue his professional labors in Connecticut as well as in Rhode Island, and in the course of a few years had an extensive and remunerative practice in both States.

In 1813, and also for several successive years, he was chosen to represent Westerly in the General Assembly. In 1800 the Washington Bank of Westerly was established, and in 1829 Mr. Dixon, who for several years was a member of the Board of Directors of the bank, was elected its president. He was continued in this office until his death. During a number of years he held the rank of Colonel in the militia of Rhode Island.

In Oct., 1838, without any solicitation or effort on his part, Colonel Dixon was elected, by the Rhode Island Legislature, to represent the State as one of its Senators in the Congress of the United States, for a term of six years, beginning Mar. 4, 1839. During his service in the Senate the following named were some of the eminent and able men who were members of that body: John C. Calhoun, of So. Carolina, Rufus Choate, of Massachusetts, Richard H. Bayard, of Delaware, Henry Clay, of Kentucky, James Buchanan, of Pennsylvania, Thomas H. Benton, of Missouri, Silas Wright, of New York, and Daniel Webster, of Massachusetts.

Mr. Dixon passed away, as before stated, during the second session of the Twenty-seventh Congress. Many eloquent tributes of respect to his memory were given by members of the Senate.

"Thomas Edwards and Jerusha Brown, both of Stonington were married in ye year of 1712 by Nathaniel Cheesborough, Justice of the Peace.

In presence of us
THOMAS BROWN
SARAH EDWARDS."

This Thomas Brown and Sarah Edwards who were witnesses to the ceremony were probably her younger brother Thomas (22) and her younger sister Sarah (21). This union explains where the Edwards and Maine ancestors of the Jabish Main family found the name Collins for a first name. [See B. and M. G. 555, p. 130.] Dr. C. Wesley Hale [B. and M. G., p. 135] has the statement in the handwriting of his great-grandmother Freelove (Edwards) Maine, that Jerusha Brown (20) was the dau. of Thomas Brown (2). In view of the above facts and many others, there seems to be no doubt of the identity of the particular parties to this union.

“A list of all ye freemen of Westerly Town from the first Settlement thereof.” The number recorded about 170 men. Among these are Nicholas Utter and Thomas Utter. No date of this record is given.

The Land Evidence Books of the Town of Westerly, R. I., show, by the several deeds of record, and transfers to several people, that Nicholas Utter and his four sons were landholders in Westerly. Deeds in some instances were signed by their marks, by which it must not be inferred they could not write, but that sickness, infirmity, and old age were the cause. For earlier transactions their signatures are given. In Book 3, p. 20, Nicholas Utter is mentioned as owning land in Westerly, R. I., in July “ye 13 day 1710.” Also, Nicholas Utter, in Book 3, Land Evidence, and his son Nicholas Utter, Jr., were mentioned in a transaction in February, “ye 8 day 1720/21 per John Babcock Town Clerk.”

After graduating from this school he went to Utica, N. Y., for a time. At the age of nineteen he went to Cazenovia, N. Y., and attended school there for a time. He then went to Norwich, Chenango Co., N. Y., and clerked for Chapman & Thorp, general merchants. Mr. Thorp's daughter was the wife of Ole Bull, the celebrated violinist. Mr. Utter, for a while, conducted a store of general merchandise on his own account at Unadilla Forks, and later at So. Brookfield, N. Y. He soon tired of this and took up civil engineering, for which he had a great liking and with which he had in a degree familiarized himself. He associated himself with Nelson J. Beach in the construction of the Black River Canal. Mr. Beach was subsequently made vice-president of the Hudson River R. R. Co., and he took Mr. Utter with him, securing for him the position of chief engineer, with headquarters at New York City. When the New York Central Railroad was consolidated with the Hudson River Road, Mr. Utter was continued in the employ of the Vanderbilts, and placed in charge of the maps of the entire system. This collection of maps, as arranged by Mr. Utter, was perfect. He knew every piece of property owned by the Central Company, and could give the location, extent, etc., without reference to maps. He was a valuable assistant to counsel in actions in which the company was involved. He was recognized as the best-posted man in that particular in the employ of the road. Mr. Utter was continued in this capacity until 1886, when his health became impaired, he being attacked with nervous prostration. The Central Company continued his name on the pay-roll during his entire illness.

Utter m. (3), at Westerly, Aug. 16, 1871, Harriet Wells Stillman, widow of Welcome Stillman. Elder George B. Utter, in 1844, joined with others in establishing a religious newspaper called the Sabbath Recorder, which soon became the leading recognized organ of the Seventh-Day Baptist denomination. For more than twenty-five years he edited and published that paper, and had the oversight of the monthly and quarterly periodicals and books and reports of various kinds published by that denomination. In 1850 he became interested in the Narragansett Weekly, a paper published in Westerly, and removed with his family, in January, 1862, to Westerly. He and his brother John Herbert Utter joined in the publication of that paper. On the death of J. Herbert Utter, in 1886, Mr. George B. Utter assumed the whole responsibility of that paper. He was a man of rare abilities, unassuming, and far-sighted; his counsel was sought by people both far and near for his judgment in financial and other matters. He had prepared for the ministry and was ordained, but important duties with which he was connected prevented his becoming pastor of a church.

Son and only child, by second m.:

2700. George Herbert Utter, b., at Plainfield, N. J., July 24, 1854; d., at Westerly, Nov. 3, 1912; m. Elizabeth Lovina Brown (2701 2704).

George Herbert Utter (2700), the preceding, m., at Boston, Mass., May 19, 1880, Elizabeth Lovina Brown, b., at Brighton [now Boston], Mass., June 15, 1858; dau. of Cyrus H. and Sarah Catherine (Maxson) Brown. Both were members of the Pawcatuck Seventh-Day Baptist Church, at Westerly. Mr. Utter received his early education in Westerly, where he came with his parents in 1861, after which he spent two years in Alfred Academy, Alfred, N. Y. He then returned to Westerly, and two more years were devoted to the pursuance of his course of instruction in the Westerly High School. He then entered Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., from which he was graduated with the class of 1877. Before his collegiate career Mr. Utter learned the printer's trade, and after his graduation he became associated with his father, George B., and his uncle, J. Herbert, Utter in publishing the Narragansett Weekly. On the death of his uncle, in 1886, he was taken into the firm; and on the death of his father, in 1892, he became sole proprietor of the paper. Through his efforts the Westerly Daily Sun was started, the first issue appearing on Aug. 7, 1893. Mr. Utter was engaged in public life for more than thirty years, first serving on the School Board of the town of Westerly, with which he was long identified. His public career was commenced in 1883, and for two years he was on the staff of Gov. Augustus O. Bourn. Unassuming to an unusual degree, he was nevertheless a capable public officer in all the important public places he was called upon to fill. He was Secretary of State from 1891 to 1894, being compelled to retire because of increasing business demands upon him. He served in succession as a member of both branches of the Legislature, as Speaker of the House, Lieutenant-Governor, and Governor, and finally as Representative to Congress. He received the unanimous nomination of his party for a second term in Congress, and would undoubtedly have been re-elected had his life been spared — his death occurring only two days before the election, Nov. 5, 1912. If he had survived, it is probable that the doors of the United States Senate would have opened to him.

He was always an active church worker, and devoted a considerable portion of his time to the Young Men's Christian Associations throughout the Eastern States, being a member of the Y. M. C. A. Executive Committee for Massachusetts and Rhode Island. He was made a deacon of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church of Westerly in 1894, and for twenty years acted as superintendent of the Sabbath-school. For fifteen years he was treasurer of the Missionary Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist denomination.

A striking proof of the impression he made at Washington in the short period that was vouchsafed to him there may be found in the Congressional Record of June 17, 1912. Mr. Richardson, of Alabama, the Democratic Chairman of the Committee on Pensions, paid the following exceptional tribute to him in an address before the House:

"Mr. Speaker, I regret very much indeed that a very distinguished member of this House, a member of the Pension Committee, and, in my opinion, justly and worthily classed among the ablest lawyers on the floor of this House, from the State of Rhode Island, Mr. Utter, is not present."

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

This is the tribute of an experienced Democratic legislator to a Republican serving his first term, and it is rendered the more striking by the fact that Mr. Utter was not a member of the bar. Mr. Utter was more than a politician — he was a statesman. He spoke throughout this part of the country in behalf of high causes, and was gaining a continually wider reputation as a master of the art of easy and effective address.

The State is poorer for his death. It is no exaggeration to say that Rhode Island mourns for George Utter, as he was familiarly and affectionately known. It saw in him the best type of public servant, — efficient, modest, and industrious; a man of high ideals, blameless private life, instinctive friendliness, and stout convictions.

“Though modest, on his unembarrassed brow,
Nature had written ‘gentleman.’”

The following is an extract from the Memorial Address of Senator Wetmore, of Rhode Island, at Washington, Feb. 22, 1913:

“My acquaintance with Mr. Utter extended over a period of many years, and I held him in the greatest esteem.

“He had a high standard of political and civic conduct, which he exemplified in his life.

“He was an orator of ability, always ready to give this gift of his to the Nation and his State; and it may be truly said his life was shortened by complying with the many demands of this nature made upon him.

“His personality was attractive and his disposition lovable.

“The world is better for his life.”

Immediately after his graduation he went upon the editorial staff of the paper with his father, and now, in 1915, is editor and manager of the Westerly Daily Sun.

LAYOUT OF HIGHWAY IN TOWN OF STONINGTON.

1753.

FROM PAWCATUCK BRIDGE TO VOLUNTOWN LINE.

To the Honorable County Court to be holden at New London within and for the County of New London, on the 2d Tuesday of June next.

We your Honors Jury freeholders in the towns of Groton and Preston being summoned and appointed by Benjamin Starr Esq., of New London, Sheriff of the County of New London, by a writ of summons directed to him dated the 14th day of February Anno Domini 1753 by order of said Court signed by Daniel Coit, Clerk of said Court to lay out an open highway in Stonington from the bridge called Pawcatuck Bridge up North Westerly across Puckhungunuck Hill to the town of Voluntown where it will be most convenient for the public and less prejudicial to the proprietors, and the same to affix by proper meets and bounds, also to make a just estimate of the damage done to the particular proprietors.

In pursuance of and obedience to your Honors summons and appointment, by the writ or precept aforesaid we proceeded to and met at the house of Col. Joseph Pendleton in Westerly in Rhode Island Government near said Pawcatuck Bridge on Monday the 18th day of April 1753, that being the time and place when said Sheriff appointed and ordered us to meet in order to our laying out said highway in manner as aforesaid. Being convened at said place (and returned over said Pawcatuck Bridge into Stonington aforesaid) and after sworn to the service of laying out said highway, sundry of the inhabitants of the town of Stonington and the adjoining proprietors to the land contiguous on or near to said bridge proceeded with and shewed to us sundry places which some of them adjudged most convenient and suitable to lay out said highway, upon which we viewed, surveyed and considered, and heard their pleas and allegations thereon, and upon mature deliberation of the whole, we proceeded to lay out said highway as follows—viz—

Beginning at the Westerly end of said Pawcatuck Bridge at the North-westerly corner thereof, thence West  $5^{\circ}$  North 2 rods and 4 feet to a mere stone, thence West  $24\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$  South 2 rods and 4 foot to a stake, 2 foot South East from the South West corner of a small dwelling house belonging to Mr. Jonathan Richards, on thence West  $11^{\circ}$  South 20 rods to an old stump of a tree with stones on it at the Southerly end of a knoll near the old country road, thence North  $42^{\circ}$  West  $4\frac{1}{2}$  rods to a heap of stones, thence North  $20^{\circ}$  West  $11\frac{3}{4}$  rods to a white oak bush marked R

MAP OF STONINGTON HIGHWAY

Key to Map of Stonington Highway

The road from Pawcatuck Bridge to the Voluntown line was laid out in 1753. But few settlers were then living on this road. The names of many of them were given in the layout of the road. Its general direction is north, yet it is a very crooked road. The scale of the map is one inch to the mile, and milestones are placed on the right-hand side, and all are still legible except the seventh, which has left on it only "B." The houses are given as the compiler remembers them after 1837.

HISTORY OF THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH OF BROOKFIELD, N. Y.

[See p. 244 and records that follow.]

One of the principal promoters of this church was Simeon Brown, Jr., son of Elder Simeon Brown, of Stonington, Conn. He received a license to preach in 1775, being the first who had been granted a license from that church.

He emigrated from Stonington, Conn., May, 1702, with his wife and children in an ox-cart. This family and others coming from Stonington from time to time were a nucleus from which this church was formed, June 28, 1708.

Twenty people met together to consider the organization of a Baptist church. After drawing up articles of faith, the First Church of Christ in Brookfield, N. Y., was organized, Oct. 12, 1700. There in the wild woods and amid howling beasts of prey was erected an altar for the worship of God. This young church began holding meetings with their spiritual leader and recognized head in the log house of the minister, Elder Simeon

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

Brown, Jr., and there was much interest shown among the scattered settlers. After a few years a meeting-house was built, making a more attractive and comfortable church home for the people. Elder Brown was the pastor until his death, Aug. 18, 1826. In 1837 a new meeting-house was built, to be used together with the Seventh-Day Baptist people of Clarkville, which is occupied still by both churches in 1915.

This Brookfield Baptist Church has ordained nine pastors and licensed twelve to preach the gospel. It has always had a Deacon Brown since its organization, but one person of that name holding that position at the same time. During its existence it has always observed monthly communion service. In September, 1801, the church joined the Otsego Baptist Association, always being regular in its representatives and delegates. Thus by strong faith in God from the beginning, for sixscore years this church has flourished, and is still holding forth the word of life.

The following extracts are from reminiscences of Elder Brown read at the Centennial Celebration of this church, July 7, 1898:

"In personal appearance Elder Brown was more than medium height and well proportioned, being of strong build. He had light brown hair worn moderately long in thin locks, eyes blue, shaded with heavy eyebrows and a massive forehead. He was always clean shaven, and had a pleasing expression. He was fond of the chase, and in his later years would ride to a known fox trail and often do good shooting in the saddle.

"When he became too feeble to leave his home he held evening services in his own house. His last sermon was preached at his house while sitting in his chair, being too feeble to stand."

This church has had in one hundred and seven years nineteen pastors, from its organization in 1798 to 1905. The longest pastorates were Rev. Simeon Brown, Jr., from 1798 to 1826, and Rev. Holland Turner, from 1835 to 1845.

The ordinations in this church were: Rev. Simeon Brown, Jr., Oct. 14, 1800; Rev. Joshua Wells, Oct. 18, 1815; Thomas Dye; G. B. Perry, Mar. 5, 1823; Peter Latimer, May 31, 1827; Ferris Scott, July 20, 1858; O. N. Fletcher, Nov. 1, 1866; A. V. B. Crumb, Aug. 23, 1876, missionary to Burmah; R. J. Thompson, Aug. 15, 1883.

The Deacons, from organization to 1905, were: Daniel Main, Nathan Brown, Bell Lewis, Wait Clarke, Samuel Browne, Thomas E. Craine, George Crumb, Morgan L. Brown, Don F. Maine, Ivory Cole.

The church clerks, from organization to 1905, were: Andrew Coats, Asa Frink, Jr., Allen Green, Henry Brown, Randall Y. Hibbard, Don F. Maine, Ellen R. Baldwin, Catherine Crandall, Clifton Craine.

AS YOU GO THROUGH LIFE.

Don't look for the flaws as you go through life;
And even when you find them,
It is wise and kind to be somewhat blind
And look for the virtue behind them.
For the cloudiest night has a hint of light
Somewhere in its shadows hiding;
It is better by far to hunt for a star,
Than the spots on the sun abiding.

The world will never adjust itself
To suit your whims to the letter;
Some things must go wrong your whole life long,
And the sooner you know it the better.
It is folly to fight with the infinite,
And go under at last in the wrestle;
The wiser man shapes into God's plan
As the water shapes into a vessel.

MANY OF THE DESCENDANTS OF

CHARLES BROWNE

OF ROWLEY, MASS.

1647-1915

INTRODUCTION.

THE PLANTING OF THE MASSACHUSETTS COLONY AND INCORPORATION OF THE TOWN OF ROWLEY, MASS.

THE early history of every town furnishes incidents worth preserving. Some of them may be uninteresting to strangers, but to native inhabitants, especially New Englanders, descendants of the Puritan and Pilgrim Fathers, they all have an interest. To preserve such facts and incidents as are supposed to be more particularly interesting to the descendants of the first settlers of the ancient town of Rowley is our object in these preface notes. To the self-denial of these first settlers, to their wisdom, their constancy, their labors, their valor, their perseverance, privations, piety, and prayers, we owe, under God, and our posterity to the latest generation will owe, the possession of privileges, civil and religious, surpassing those of any other people on earth.

Here, in this extensive territory, had God doubtless designed to exhibit a wonderful display of his wisdom, power, and truth through the agency of a people raised up for that very purpose. But by what instrumentality was this mighty work to be accomplished? It was through the mysterious instrumentality of persecution! Yes, it was the crushing, grinding influence of the persecutor's hand both in Church and State which was made instrumental, in the wonder-working Providence of God, in peopling this our land with godly and learned men, and in rearing our goodly fabrics of freedom, piety, and culture, the blessings of which are to descend to countless myriads yet unborn, both here and in distant regions of the earth.

The following sketch of the first settlements of Massachusetts Colony is taken principally from a letter of Thomas Dudley to Lady Bridger, Countess of Lincoln, dated March 28, 1631:

“But a few years elapsed after the planting of Plymouth Colony before the planting of the Massachusetts Colony was projected by several friends met together in Lincolnshire, England, in 1627, who fell into discourse about New England and the planting of the gospel there. After some deliberation they addressed letters to some one in London and other places, where it was also deliberately thought upon, and at length so ripened that in the year 1628 they procured a patent from King Charles the First for their planting between the Massachusetts Bay and Charles River on the south, and the river Merrimack on the north, and three miles on either side of those rivers and bay; as also for the governing of those who did or should inhabit within that compass. The same year Mr. John Endicott and others were sent over and began a settlement at Salem. The next year, 1629, the company sent over divers ships, with about three hundred people and some cows, goats, and horses, many of which arrived safely. The next year, 1630, the company sent over sixteen ships. One left England in February, one in March, four in April, eight in May, one in June, one in August; and one other was sent by a private merchant. These all arrived safely in New England, at Salem.

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

“On the arrival of Thomas Dudley and others, in June and July, 1630, the colony at Salem was found to be in a sad condition. Above eighty had died the preceding winter. Of the remainder of the one hundred and eighty persons the company had sent over two years before, many were weak and sick, having food hardly sufficient to feed them a fortnight, the company being wholly unable to feed them. The reason for this was that the provisions shipped for them were taken out of the ship they were put in; and they who were trusted to ship them in another failed of doing so and left them behind, whereupon the company was at a great loss.

“Notwithstanding all the difficulties and embarrassments under which these people labored, they soon began to look about for places to settle. They on the whole concluded to plant themselves in different localities, some in Charlestown, some in Boston, some at ‘Meadford,’ Watertown, Roxbury, Saugus [now Lynn], and others in Dorchester. After having fixed upon their places of location and settlement, such as were able to labor began building, wherein many were interrupted with sickness, and many died weekly, yea, almost daily. Mr. Higginson, one of the ministers of Salem, died March 15, 1630-31. On September 30 died Mr. Johnson, one of the five of the joint stock company, the Lady Arabella, his wife, having died a month before. This gentlemen was a prime man, having the best estate of any. Within a month afterwards died Mr. Rossiter, one of the assistants, so that now there were left, of the five undertakers of the project, but the governor [Winthrop], Sir Richard Saltonstall, and Thomas Dudley, Mr. Revil having returned to England. The natural causes of so many deaths seemed to be the want of warm lodging and good diet, to which they had been accustomed at home, and the sudden increase of heat into which they had come who were landed here in the summer. Those only, these last two years, died of fevers who landed in June and July. Those of the Plymouth Colony who landed in winter died of the scurvy."

Notwithstanding the many and great discouragements under which the first settlers of the Massachusetts Colony labored, they were prosperously increased by great numbers of emigrants from England, who arrived from year to year. For several years next after 1631 about twenty ships with passengers arrived each year. The number of inhabitants was so increased that they were forced to look out for new plantations every year, so that within a few years every desirable place on the seacoast fit for a plantation was taken up. On the arrival of Mr. Ezekiel Rogers, with about twenty families, in December, 1638, the aforementioned towns of Salem, Charlestown, Boston, Medford, Watertown, Roxbury, Lynn, and Dorchester, together with Cambridge, Ipswich, Newbury, Weymouth, Hingham, Concord, Dedham, and Braintree, were all occupied. They therefore spent the winter in Salem, improving the time in looking out a place for a plantation.

Mr. Rogers was a man of great note in England for his zeal, piety, and brilliant abilities. Mr. Eaton and Mr. Davenport exerted themselves, therefore, to persuade him and his company to proceed to New Haven, Conn., and settle with them. He, feeling his responsibility to many persons of "quality in England who depended on him to choose a fit place for them," consulted with the ministers of Massachusetts. By their advice he and his people concluded to take a place between Ipswich and Newbury, and these towns having granted some farms on this tract, Mr. Rogers purchased them at the price of £800.

But Mr. Davenport and Mr. Eaton and their people were so zealous to obtain Mr. Rogers and his flock that they sent on a messenger with letters to obtain them if possible. Mr. Rogers again desired the ministers to assemble. He laid before them his letters from New Haven. Accordingly, after this consultation, he sent them their final answer, and then came with his people to this place,—at first called "Mr. Rogers' Plantation," afterwards Rowley; so called from Rowley in Yorkshire, England, where he and some of his people had lived. The precise time of their removal to Rowley is not known, but it was probably as early as the last of April or the first of May, 1639.

The act of incorporation is in the following words: "4th day of the 7th month, 1639.—Ordered, that Mr. Ezekiel Rogers' plantation shall be called Rowley."

THE BROWN GENEALOGY

Mr. Rogers brought over with him from England but about twenty families, as before stated. Before coming to Rowley, however, he had increased his company to about sixty families. These people, it appears, labored together for nearly five years, from the time they commenced a settlement in the place; no man holding land in severalty from the company until after they had, probably, cleared up the land on each side of the brook that runs through the central part of what is the first parish of Rowley.

"In 1643," says Winthrop, "our supplies from England failing much, men began to look about them, and fell to a manufacture of cotton, whereof we had in store from Barbadoes, and of hemp and flax, wherein Rowley, to our great commendation, exceeded all other towns."

As early as 1643, John Pearson, a clothier, moved into Rowley, and erected the first fulling-mill in New England. Edward Johnson, one of the first settlers of Woburn, in his "Wonder-working Providence," speaking of the first settlers of Rowley, says: "They consisted of about threescore families; these people being very industrious every way, soon built as many houses, and were the first people that set upon making of cloth in this western world; for which end they built a fulling-mill, and caused their little ones to be very diligent in spinning cotton and wool, many of them having been clothiers in England."

Mr. Rogers had an annual salary of £60. The first meeting-house was probably built in 1630, so zealous were the Puritans, and so zealous were their genuine descendants, to make the attainment of a place of worship the object of their first concern. Mr. Rogers was a man of undoubted and ardent piety and sound learning, zealous and persevering in his efforts to advance the cause of truth and holiness, and of great influence. By his will, bearing date April 17, 1660, Mr. Rogers gave lands of considerable value to the church and the town of Rowley, "for the better enabling them to carry on the ministry for ever."

Rowley was no less active in war than in peace, for in the expedition against Quebec, in 1690, the town furnished one captain, one lieutenant, and thirty non-commissioned officers and privates.

Sept. 5, 1830, was set apart in pursuance of a vote of the town for the purpose of celebrating the second centennial anniversary of the settlement of Rowley. Appropriate addresses were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Bradford and Thomas E. Payson, Esq. A very imposing procession was formed by the chief marshal. The order of march was as follows:

INTRODUCTION

Chief Marshal (mounted), with Aids, Escort, Marshal.

President and Vice-Presidents of the day.

Marshal. Orators and Officiating Clergyman. Marshal.

Town Officers.

Marshal. Invited Guests. Marshal.

Committee of Arrangements.

Clergyman.

Marshal.

Marshal. Soldiers of the Revolution (in carriages). Marshal.

Marshal.

Marshal. Strangers and Citizens generally. Marshal.

This procession was headed by the Salem Brass Band.

A man well acquainted with the manners and customs of the American Indians, in full Indian costume, carrying the pipe and armor of the late Black Hawk, an Indian chief, was in the procession, and excited the curiosity of many.

tioned in the Rowley town records, and his name comes down through many generations.

Nathaniel Brown (8), son of Charles (1) and Mary (Acey) Brown, b., at Rowley, Mass., May 20, 1660; d. May, 1731. His will was probated May 16, 1731, in Groton, Conn. He m., June 4, 1685, Mary Wheeler, dau. of David and Sarah (Wise) Wheeler, of Rowley and Newburyport, Mass. He sold his homestead in Rowley to the brother of his wife, Jonathan Wheeler, June 29, 1707. He and his wife, Mary, were dismissed from the church in Rowley to the church in Groton, June 29, 1707; in Essex deeds it is stated, Jan. 8, 1707-08, as of Groton, Conn., late of Rowley. He is first mentioned in Groton land records in 1709. In 1712 he was made an inhabitant of Groton. July 1, 1712, his name appears among those who owned lots at "Nawayank" [Lot 3, probably Noank]. Feb. 28, 1709, he bought of Gershom Rice, of Sudbury, Mass., "a certain tract of upland and swamp" in Groton, located on the west side of the "Great Brook that runneth into Poquonock Cove," originally part of the two hundred acres of land owned by Daniel Lane, of New London, Conn. In his will he bequeaths this homestead to his sons Benjamin, Abner, and William. To Benjamin he gave the dwelling-house. William sold his portion to Benjamin; it was located "near a small ledge of rocks, 190 rods to the Great Brook." He owned land on Fort Hill, Long Hill by the ferry, and by "Nawayank." His homestead farm on a portion of it is now owned by George Miner, of Groton.

Henry Kirk Brown (692), the preceding, m. Lydia Louisa Udall (133). Mr. Brown was twelve years old when he made what may be called his first serious attempt in art; for those instinctive tastes converted the farmer boy of Leyden, Mass., into a painter and sculptor of great renown. Encouraged by his mother, he had ever traced those impulses which gave direction to his life to her. In the most primitive way he sketched with pencil the head of an old, sightless man of nearly a hundred winters to whom he had been reading stories. Then the mother furnished him with some old linen, which served as canvas for a painting. With these rude materials he produced what was regarded with admiring wonder, a perfect representation of the old man. The effort was in the highest degree original, for the youth had never seen a portrait.

Mr. Brown's first year abroad was spent in Florence. The summer months of 1845 were passed in Naples and its neighborhood. During the other three years of his absence his home was in Rome. Here he began to feel more than ever before the true dignity and importance of art. The works of Raphael and Michael Angelo, and especially the wonders of Grecian art, now spread out before him and inspired him anew. Here was a standard of unerring accuracy. The face and form of the North American Indian seem to have won a special place in his regard, and to study these he visited the resorts of the Red Man in the distant Northwest, and later carefully explored the invaluable treasures of the Indian Department at Washington.

In so short a sketch cannot be given the full scope of his marvelous work in painting and sculpture. To art he devoted his life with the fervor and fidelity of a true love. His studies were mainly among the purest and best remains of antique, assiduously compared with living nature.

Honored Father:

After my duty presented to you with my wifes these are to signify to you that we are all in health through divine mercy as I hope you and yours are. I should be very glad if it might be my lot to live nearer to you and though I now live in a place very pleasant for situation yet by reason of the repeated troubles with the Indians I should be very glad if it would please God to open a door of opportunity for my doing service in some other place where I might live without fear of the enemy if you could be any way instrumental of my being in such a place I should be very thankful to you sir. If you know of any place near you which is destitute of a minister where there may be a comfortable settlement with safety, I desire you will improve your interest for me as you shall think proper. I should be glad to hear from you as often as you have opportunity to write to me. This with duty to yourself and mother with love to brother Ebenezer and Brother Pedge and sister with due respects to my other Relatives is what offers at present from your obedient son and servant

then known as the Ayres Factory; at present [1913] called Shewville. They operated a saw and grist mill, and later started in the woolen-waste business. Being successful, they built a new mill in 1874, and began the manufacture of yarns. After five years, in 1879, business reverses caused an assignment. The mill was burnt in 1883 and rebuilt by William K. Shew. The mill still stands, but has not been in operation for a number of years. Seth L. Brown was then employed by the new management, and was overseer of carding and spinning until 1891, when he moved with his family to Norwich, and entered the employ of the H. B. Nash was captain. They went around Cape Horn into the Pacific Ocean and were gone twenty-nine months. As the voyage was not very successful, his share was but $112. He shipped for a second voyage on the Vermont, during which the bark was wrecked on Amsterdam Island. The captain was lost, but all the crew were saved. He then became a master mariner, for several years sailing the Elector. After sixteen years as captain, he retired from seafaring life, and in 1860 settled in Groton, Conn., buying the fine residence and farm, situated a mile from Groton Ferry, formerly the property of Mr. Perry." [The above was extracted by Miss Meech from a book of New London County owned by Mrs. Brown.]

She added that Mr. Brown was a man of extraordinary courage and strong character, generous and unselfish, and a great worker. Her brother, who was his son-in-law, became much attached to him in the short space of time he knew him intimately, after his marriage to his dau. He of course had been acquainted with him all his life and appreciated his many good qualities, but he says he never really knew the man until he lived with him in his own house. He says of such men our country should be proud — they are its backbone. Captain Brown never let voting-day pass without casting his vote for the best man.

THE LATHAM FAMILY.*

Miss Holman, in "The Journal of American History," gives some account of the Latham family in England as follows: "It was the Latham family which exerted for so many years such a powerful influence in Lancashire County, England. Lewis Latham was Sergeant Falconer to Charles the First from 1627 until his death, in 1655. The ancestral estate remained in the possession of the family for four hundred years. . . .

"When Isabella Latham married the Earl of Derby, she was the greatest heiress of Lancashire, and her husband assumed the Latham coat-of-arms.

"The late J. G. Harris, a pay director of the United States Navy, . . . after long research and careful study, came to the conclusion that Cary Latham [one of the first settlers of New London] was a son of the William Latham who came over in the Mayflower as a youth, in charge of Governor Carver. Although he is not mentioned in the ship's company his passage is vouched for in Bradford's History.

"William Latham was at Duxbury in 1637 and at Marshfield from 1643 to 1648, and from there he sailed to the Bahamas, where he later died."

The Latham family in England has been traced back to the Danish Conquest it is said. It is also said that the American emigrants of the name came from Derbyshire.

Cary Latham was among the first five, after Governor Winthrop, to have house-lots laid out to them in New London, Conn. These lots were located northwest of Winthrop's Neck, on Main and William Streets. He came to New London from Massachusetts. In 1649 he had a little difficulty with a constable — he, Robert Bedell, and Isaac Willy being accused of letting go an Indian intrusted to their charge. He was one of those who helped build the "Old Town Mill," in 1650. In 1653 he sold the land and unfinished house, originally the property of Philip Taber, his brother-in-law, who came to New London, in 1651, from "Martin's Vineyard." In 1654 he was awarded a lease and monopoly of the ferry over the Pequot River at the town of Pequot [now Thames River and New London] for fifty years. He built a house east of the river before October, 1655, and became the first resident of what is now called Groton Bank. His home occupied the site of the Mitchell house, now standing. He owned a large tract of land extending south to the salt water, a point of land then called Shinnecosset Neck, but now Eastern Point. The ancient name still clings to the school district there located. He also owned land in the locality now called Mystic. His large land-grants enriched his descendants. He was a man of sterling worth, of value and strength to the community, serving sixteen years as Selectman, and was six times elected to the General Court, from May, 1664, to 1670. He m. He cleared the land and here made his home with his family until the year 1842, when he removed to the village of Scott. He was a man of mechanical conception, and built the first sawmill in that part of the country, sawing the timber into lumber for sale and custom work. He was a well-educated man for that day and age, and a man of great strength of character, especially noted for his eccentricities. He understood the Bible and dictionary better than the average laboring-man of his day, and as well as many students of to-day. He was a great favorite among his many nephews and nieces — especially those of his younger brother Jesse, who would sit by the hour, when opportunity presented, and listen to his tales from the "Arabian Nights" and other book-lore of "ye olden time." He would explain the mysteries of phrenology, in which he was much interested. In the early days of these pioneers their children who attended school had to follow a trail through the dense forest by marked trees. Their hardships and privations were many, and their pleasures and luxuries were few. No one can fully realize the changes that have been wrought and the myriad of improvements that have been made since his life began. At this mature age, with a life-assured competency, he lived as he chose. He was also a very good carpenter, and when he felt the need of physical exercise he took it at the bench or with the broad axe, as heavy timbers used in those days had to be hewed to proper dimensions. After the death of his wife, in 1856, he left his occupation at the sawmill and took up his residence with his daughter, Elizabeth Brown Grout, at "Grout's Mills," one mile west of the village of Scott, Sylvanus N. Grout, his son-in-law, being proprietor of the flouring mills. He lived with his daughter until his death, which occurred July 3, 1881. After his removal from No. Groton, in 1818, the rest of his life was spent in Scott, where all of his children were born.

MY FINAL WORD.

TO MY SUCCESSOR.

Here is a toast I want to drink to a fellow I 'll never know;
To the fellow who 's going to take my place when it 's time for me to go.
I 've wondered what kind of a chap he'll be, and I 've wished I could take his hand,
Just to whisper "I wish you well, old man," in a way that he 'd understand;
I 'd like to give him the cheering word that I 've longed at times to hear;
I 'd like to give him the warm hand-clasp, whenever a friend seems near.
I 've learned my knowledge by sheer hard work, and I wish I could pass it on
To the fellow who 'll come to take my place some day when I am gone.

Will he see all the sad mistakes I 've made, and note all the battles lost?
Will he ever guess of the tears they caused, or the heartaches which they have cost?
Will he gaze through the failures and fruitless toil to the underlying plan,
And catch a glimpse of the real intent and the heart of the vanquished man?
I dare to hope he may pause some day as he toils as I have wrought,
And gain some strength for his weary task from the battles which I have fought.
But I 've only the task itself to leave with the cares for him to face,
And never a cheering word may speak to the fellow who 'll take my place.

Then here 's to your health, Old Chap! I drink as a bridegroom to his bride;
I leave an unfinished task for you — but God knows how I tried!
I 've dreamed my dreams as all men do, but never a one came true;
And my prayer to-day is that all the dreams may be realized by you.
And we 'll meet some day in the great unknown, out in the realm of space;
You 'll know my clasp as I take your hand and gaze in your tired face.
Then all our failures will be success in the light of the new-found dawn;
So I 'm drinking your health, Old Chap, who 'll take my place when I 'm gone.
